Moses Ackerman Killed By Train

Lincoln Man Victim 21st And M Crash

Insurance Agency Head Drives Car Into Path Of Locomotive

Was Hard of Hearing and Is Believed Not To Have Seen Freight

Moses Ackerman, about 79, 1508 E street, Lincoln insurance man, met almost instant death at about 12:25 o'clock Saturday noon when his automobile was struck by Rock Island freight No. 82 at Twenty-first and M streets.

Eye witnesses declared Ackerman, who was deaf, apparently did not see or hear the train, for he drove right onto the tracks, going south on Twenty-first street, as the train was proceeding north at a moderate rate of speed.

D. J. Ireland, of Fairbury, engineer, declared he did not believe Ackerman saw the train coming, and that he stopped the engine as soon as he saw there was going to be a crash—bringing the freight to a complete stop within less than a block. G. L. Ensign, fireman and L. L. Nuckolls, conductor, also of Fairbury, supported Ireland's statement.

Rolled Over 3 Times.

After the pilot of the train struck the left side of the Ackerman car the machine was shunted about 50 feet to the northwest, and rolled over three times before stopping, right side up, facing to the southeast, according to Deputy Sheriff Homer Greer, who investigated. The top and side of the car were damaged, and the windshield was broken out. A safety sticker was on the back of the car.

Ackerman remained in the driver's seat, where he died a few moments after the accident, as eye witnesses were holding his hand, waiting for the ambulance. He was bleeding from the head, but was apparently not greatly injured otherwise. Shock was believed to be a contributing factor to his death. He was taken to Lincoln General hospital.

Officer Frank Robbins reported that Ackerman's coat and hat were picked up shortly after the accident, lying near the tracks, between two freight cars.

Louis Loomis, 2030 Monroe street, who lives about a block from the corner, said that he heard the train stopping suddenly near his place, and looking out, saw the car in a neighbor's garden. He ran to the aid of Ackerman, and said that the injured man appeared to have a feeble pulse when he first got to him.

Mengies Turner, 2440 O street, in a car with five other persons, said they had stopped at the crossing for the train, and that he was certain that Ackerman drove onto the tracks without realizing the train's presence. Among other eye witnesses was Lawrence Martin, 2047 Monroe street, who told a similar story.

Was Early Resident.

Mr. Ackerman maintained his insurance office in room 203 in the Kresge building. He was a pioneer resident of Lincoln, coming here about 47 years ago and for a number of years was engaged in the wholesale millinery business with headquarters at the present location of the National Bank of Commerce. After retiring from the millinery business about 20 years ago he has spent most of his time since then in insurance.

Mr. Ackerman was a member of Congregation B'Nai Jeshurum. Surviving are his wife, Alice, a son, Arthur, in New York City, and a daughter, Mrs. Russell Chase of Jamestown, N. D.

VARSITY-FROSH TUSSLE BRINGS OUT 5,000 FANS

First Regulation Game Of Season Marked By Baseball Weather

Baseball weather greeted the University of Nebraska football team Saturday afternoon as the varsity met the freshmen in a regulation game at Memorial stadium. The contest gave Cornhusker fans a pre-view of Coach Dana X. Bible's 1935 pigskin hopefuls.

While the terrific heat bothered the players, it caused little inconvenience to the spectators. The fans, 5,000 strong, shed their coats and sought the shade of the west sadium. Lineups:

NERA TO GIVE AID TO RURAL CLIENTS

Gets Authority To Tide Needy Over, Pending RA Expansion

That there shall be no suffering among the farm population, the Nebraska relief administration has been granted authority to give rural relief clients temporary care until the new resettlement administration can take over all rural relief problems, E. F. Witte, state NERA director, announced Saturday.

Witte pointed out that at present the resettlement administration has no power to give direct relief as its present policy is to seek permanent rehabilitation of eligible farm borrowers by putting them on farms which will yield enough to make them self-sustaining and permit amortization of their loans in five years or less.

Since many rural folk are not in a position to work out any sort of plan by which the resettlement administration could extend them loans with any assurance that the loans would be repaid, the NERA has to step in, Witte explained.

However the administrator emphasized that all rural relief clients must be referred to the resettlement administration in order that, if possible, a permanent rehabilitation plan may be worked out, thus taking them off the relief rolls for all time.

Waitkus Hops Off At N. Y. For Lithuania

Hopes To Make 4,500-Mile Nonstop Flight In 28 To 30 Hours

FACES BAD WEATHER

Plans Route Via Newfoundland, England And Baltic Sea

NEW YORK, Sept. 21—(AP)—Bound on a nonstop flight to Lithuania, Lieut. Felix Waitkus was faced today with bad weather conditions over the north Atlantic.

Six hours after the 28-year-old Kohler, Wis., flier lifted his plane the Lithuanica II—from Floyd Bennett field at 5:45 a. m. (E. S. T.), weather reports from Newfoundland said flying conditions "could scarcely be worse.'

Waitkus and Plane.

Waitkus was unsighted along the North Atlantic coast. No concern was felt for his safety, however.

The plane is not equipped with radio sending equipment and, in addition, Waitkus planned to fly as much as possible in the substratosphere.

Officials at Floyd Bennett field said if Waitkus did this, he would miss the bad weather lying ahead of him. He was due over Newfoundland late today.

Goal Is Kaunas.

Waitkus' goal is Kaunas, Lithuanian capital, 4,500 miles from New York.

Heavily-loaded, the airplane left Floyd Bennett in a dead calm, with fair skies overhead.

The route planned by Waitkus would take him over Newfoundland, Ireland, England, Denmark and the Baltic sea, entering Lithuania by way of Memel.

The total load with which he took off was 8,000 pounds.

He also took with him a collapsible boat, kites, a pistol and flares.

The plane, capable of 200 miles per hour top speed and cruising speed of 160 miles per hour, was loaded with 700 gallons of gasoline and 38 gallons of oil.

He said he would fly in the sub-stratosphere at an altitude between 10,000 and 15,000 feet. He expected the flight to require 28 to 30 hours.

HIGH-RIDING CUBS MIX WITH PIRATES

CHICAGO, Sept. 21—(AP)—The high-riding Chicago Cubs, leading the National league pennant race by two and one-half games, went after their 17th straight victory as they opened a two-game series with the Pittsburgh Pirates before a ladies' day throng of 40,000 spectators today.

Little Roy Henshaw, who has beaten the Pirates six times in seven attempts this season, was Manager Charley Grimm's mound selection. He was opposed by Guy Bush, the man the Cubs traded to the Pirates last fall.

Lineups:

Both teams went scoreless the first three innings as Bush and Henshaw bore down. Lavagetto got a single with two out for the Pirates in the second and the Cubs put two on base in their half of the frame as Demaree singled, took second on a bad throw in from the outfield, and Hack's base on balls, but failed to get anywhere. With two out, Bill Herman lashed out his fifty-fifth double of the season in the third, but Lindstrom grounded to Vaughan for the third out.

GERMANS ATTACK FRENCH CHILDREN; ONE IS STABBED

METZ, France, Sept. 21—(AP)—Metz police reported tonight that one girl had been stabbed when eight members of the Hitler youth organization crossed the frontier from Germany and attacked a group of French children.

Police said investigation showed the Hitler youth members approached the French children, who were tending cows, and told them that they "soon will be Germans again."

When the children protested they wanted to remain French the attack took place.

The German boys quickly recrossed the frontier into Germany.

U. S. CHAMBER ORDERS STUDY OF TAXATION

Parts Of New Tax Plan Called Discriminatory And Inequitable

WASHINGTON, Sept. 21—(AP)—After a leader in the chamber of commerce of the United States had called parts of the new $250,000,000 tax law "discriminatory and inequitable,' the directors of the organzation announced today they had ordered a study of the whole field of federal taxation and expenditures."

This announcement came after the directors, concluding a one day sesion late yesterday, had authorized a nationwide poll of the chamber membership on a report sharply criticizing the "trend" of new deal legislation.

The criticism of the tax law was made in a statement submitted to the directors by Fred H. Clausen of Horicon, Wis., chairman of the chamber's committee on federal finance.

In discussing the tax law and the procedure leading to its enactment, he listed these points:

1. "Violation of the fundamental principle that the primary purpose of taxation is to raise revenue for the legitimate expenditures of the government. Recent tax proposals have been avowedly for the purpose of accomplishing wide reaching social and economic reforms.

"2. Failure to bring forth an adequate tax program that would combine reduction in public expenditures, a balanced budget and the imposition of new taxes in a manner that would least retard business recovery.

"3. Hasty and inadequate consideration without sufficient prior notice to the country of administrative intentions.

"4. Disregard of the prerogatives and rights of the states for raising necessary revenue.

"5. Proposals based on the principle that growth of industry to large size is inherently contrary to the well being of the nation.

"6. Taxation at such excessive rates that going concerns would be disrupted without suggesting to business any substitute for the methods which are now employed."

Burchard Man Hurt In Auto Collision

(Special to The Star.)

SEWARD, Neb., Sept. 21—Frank Svoboda, Burchard, suffered possible serious injury when his car collided headon about 1 o'clock Saturday afternoon with a machine driven by Charles F. Helm, 1718 South Twenty-second street, Lincoln, on the highway one mile west of the Seward-Lancaster county line. Helm was uninjured.

Mr. Svoboda was taken from the wreckage of his automobile in an unconscious condition and brought to the Morrow and Clarke hospital at Seward, where he was reported in a semi-conscious condition. He was attended by Dr. Bert Morrow. J-rays were tto be taken to determine extent of his injuries. Both cars were damaged badly.

Italy Turns Down League Peace Plan

League Officials Hope for Later Acceptance Of New Proposals

FRIENDLY 'NO' GIVEN

Britain, Frankly Pessimistic, Continues "Marching Ahead"

(By the Associated Press.)

Italy today rejected the League of Nations' suggestion for settlement of the Italo-Ethiopian controversy, but league officials reminded diplomats that the action did not necessarily preclude later acceptance of different proposals.

The officials said the next step of the peace forces would be to bring the report of the five-power committee, which made the suggestions, before the league council. It would be up to the council then to make the report its own or declare the conciliation phase ended and draw up a new series of recommendations.

The new series, they said, could include provisions for sanctions and give Italy and Ethiopia a last chance to accept or reject.

Before the Italian decision was announced, officials throughout Europe had predicted that, barring a sudden reversal of Italian policy, hostilities would break out in east Africa some time during the first fortnight of October.

Italian Press Attacks.

The Italian press, continuing its attack on the British empire, declared Britain already had "adopted sanctions against Italy," adding that the beginning of Italian military operations in Ethiopia might easily mean the beginning of hostilities with Great Britain.

Britain, frankly pessimistic that Il Duce would have a change of heart on his announced program of "marching straight ahead," continued its own "marching ahead" with warships into the Mediterranean.

The report that Britain and Spain had come to a secret understanding was taken as evidence that the British empire was preparing for a possible conflict by every means. These impressions were strengthened by Spanish troop movements to points of

HART SENTENCED TO 3 YEARS IN PRISON

Forger Was Found Guilty Last June 25; Had Pleaded Insanity

James P. Hart, 33, found guilty in District court last June 25 of issuing four checks with intent to defraud, Saturday was sentenced by Judge Shepherd to three years in the penitentiary and fined $200 and costs. Hart has already paid the $200 fine since he has served out the time during the last six months in the county jail.

In his trial, Hart offered insanity as a defense but was found guilty on all four counts of the complaint. The first two counts were based on two checks, one for $72, the other for $41, both of which were given to Dickson and Steeves, Panama merchants, in August and September, 1934. On the first, Hart was sentenced to one year, on the second to two years, the time to run consecutively.

Since the other two counts were based on checks under $35, they were punishable by fine rather than imprisonment.

Rate Reduction

FINAL RULING ON ASSISTANCE ACTS SPEEDED

Court Enters Formal Judgment; Wright To Ask New Trial

Cochran Asks Cut.

Gov. R. L. Cochran Saturday afternoon said the price of gasoline in Nebraska should come down a cent. "In view of the fact the one cent gasoline tax for relief no longer exists, under the orders of our Supreme court," Cochran said, "the people of Nebraska should be informed that if the price of gasoline does not come down a penny, it is because dealers have raised the price of gasoline."

The Nebraska Supreme court Saturday entered formal judgment holding the state assistance program unconstitutional as the legal machinery was set in motion for speeding the case to a final adjudication.

Assistant Attorney General Daniel Stubbs and Paul Chaney, paving the way for a motion for a new trial, filed an election not to plead further, enabling the court to enter the declaratory judgment holding the relief legislation unconstitutional on the basis of the opinion handed down Friday. With the judgment entered, the way is now open for the state's counsel to file a motion for a new trial before 5 p m. Tuesday, three days after rendition of judgment.

Speed Action.

Attorney General W. H. Wright announced Friday afternoon that he would seek a new trial. The decision not to plead further, instead of answering the petition filed by the plaintiffs, was made in order to hasten a ruling on the motion for a new trial and speed final adjudication of the matter.

A motion to dismiss the petition of intervention of Nebraska gasoline dealers, who seek return of the tax collected to date, probably will be fixed next week, Stubbs said, on the ground that the Supreme court is without jurisdiction over such an action.

The suit filed Saturday by counsel for the dealers in Lancaster county District court for return of the tax evidently was in anticipation of such a move by the attorney general. Nevertheless, Lee Basye and Don Stewart, counsel for the dealers, Saturday filed with State Treasurer George Hall and W. B. Banning, director of the department of agriculture, a "demand" that they return the taxes collected to date since March 1, with 6 per cent interest until paid.

The court in its opinion Friday took no notice of the dealers' plea that the taxes be rebated to them.

Judge Day Has To Pay Gas Relief Tax Which He Helped Rule Invalid

Motorists who don't like the idea of paying the one-cent gasoline tax for relief now that the Supreme court has declared it unconstitutional might take a cue from Supreme Court Justice L. B. Day. Shortly after the court Friday handed down its decision, Justice Day drove into a filling station to replenish his gasoline supply. Getting no satisfaction when he objected to payment of the relief tax the jurist demanded and got a receipt for his purchase. Asked what station it was, Justcie Day declined to say, remarking: "This is still a private quarrel." But he left the impression that he has his own ideas about recovering a tax that the Supreme court says is unconstitutional.

Refund Of Relief Levy Sought Here

Cochran Expects to Call Special Legislative Session In November Or December for Assistance Setup.

The expected special session of Nebraska's legislature to re-enact relief and old age pension laws, amended to overcome the constitutional defects on which the measures passed in the regular session were declared invalid by the state Supreme court, will be called for some time in November or December, as planned by Governor Cochran.

The governor said Saturday, in reply to press queries, that there is no reason for waiting until congress meets the first week in January before bringing the state legislators together. The national security act, already passed by congress, lays down the requirements that each state must meet in regard to old age pensions, unemployment insurance benefits, and special assistance to the blind. The only thing congress failed to do was providing an appropriation to start federal payments this year, where states are ready to do their share.

Definite Deadline.

As the federal government is definitely getting out of the relief field by November 1, leaving each state to handle that problem in its own way, this phase of the Nebraska situation is also definite without waiting on anything congress may do hereafter, Governor Cochran pointed out.

He will not set the extra session of the legislature earlier than November 1, however, because the rules of the Supreme court allow 40 days for filing and disposition of a motion for rehearing before its decrees are made effective. The attorney general will offer such a motion in the suit just decided adversely to the state.

Since the federal government has not yet set any fixed amount which it will contribute to the states for old age pensions, it is not known how much Nebraska must provide to match the fed-

Thirty Nebraska gasoline dealers Saturday filed suit in District court to obtain return of the one-cent gas tax money paid by them and all other dealers into the million dollar fund built up under the state assistance acts now declared unconstitutional.

The plaintiffs, all members of the Nebraska Petroleum Marketing association, also asked that State Treasurer Hall and Director of Agriculture W. B. Banning be enjoined from turning the money to state use and that the million dollars be placed in a trust fund to be returned to gasoline dealers.

Claim Occupation Tax.

Attorney Lee Basye, who with Attorney Don W. Stewart filed the action, declared that the "one cent gas tax is not a tax on gasoline as most people think but is an occupational tax paid by the gasoline dealers when gasoline was brought into this state." Basye said the Supreme court of the United States and the Nebraska Supreme court has ruled that such taxes are occupational.

Since the money which went into the assistance fund from gasoline sources was paid to the state by the dealers, the petition filed Saturday states the plaintiffs have a right to collect their payments which were made under authority of a law now ruled unconstitutional.

Tax Passed Along.

Daniel Stubbs, assistant attorney general, when informed the petition had been filed said that one of the chief defenses which probably will be offered is that the gasoline dealers passed the 1-cent tax on to the gasoline consumer and that in reality, the dealers were only acting as a tax collector for the state and did not pay the tax from their own pockets.

"There is no reason," Stubbs said, "why this money should be used to enrich several oil companies when it can do so much for the people of the state."

The plaintiffs claim that during the period from March 1, 1935, until September 1, they were forced to pay the tax assessments to the state over their protests. They assert they contended the assistance law was unconstitutional and opposed it.

In addition to seeking return of their payments they ask that the defendants, State Treasurer Hall and Banning, under whose department the taxes were collected, be compelled to pay the cost of the action.

Burglars Steal $500,000 Stocks At Hormel Home

Non-Negotiable Securities Taken In California Robbery

LOS ANGELES, Sept. 21—The Bel-Air home of George A. Hormel, millionaire Austin, Minn., canner, was broken into last Tuesday night and non-negotiable securities valued at approximately $500,000 were taken, West Los Angeles police reported today.

Police said the burglary was reported by Mrs. D. T. Bonnell, Hormel's secretary, who said the securities were in a closet in her quarters with a $500 fur coat which also was stolen.

Hormell is in Austin, Minn., and has not occupied the residence for some time.

Window Broken

Police said it was "plainly an outside job," as a window had been broken and entrance gained through the servants' quarters, adding the burglary apparently was committed by the same person or persons who had broken into nearby homes in the Bel-Air district in recent months.

Police said the burglars stuffed the fur coat into a pillow case which was found some distance from the residence.

The only occupants of the home at present are Mrs. Bonnell and a chauffeur.

Although the securities, aggregating about 30,000 shares, have no value to those taking them, they were listed on financial service wires.

The list of stolen securities was said to include 2,000 shares of Beatrice Creamery stock.

Lincoln Ministers To Present Chest Appeals

Lincoln ministers of all faiths are joining in a city-wide appeal from the pulpit Sunday in behalf of the community chest's annual drive for funds which opens next Thursday. Al Du Teau, campaign chairman, welcomed the co-operation of the city's churches as a "splendid inspiration not only to the citizens of the community but also to the chest workers."

Gas Tax Collections Hit Million Dollars Once More In August

Gasoline tax collections topped a million dollars for two months in succession when August receipts totalled $1,099,954, a gain of $226 over July receipts, Miss Florence Wright of the department of agriculture said Saturday. July was the first million-dollar month in the state's gasoline tax history.

Last month's receipts, exclusive of revenue from the now invalid one-cent relief levy, represent a net gain of $84,573 over receipts for August last year, when $795,390 was collected from the four-cent levy. Gasoline tax collections have increased steadily for the past few months over last year.

Several persons escaped injury when cars driven by Mrs. Ralph Mills, route 7, and Mrs. Nellie M. Smith, 1516 South street, collided at the intersection of Sixteenth and G streets at 12:30 o'clock Saturday afternoon. Mrs. Mills was driving west and Mrs. Smith was headed south. The calls were for the benefit of FERA workers, but the claim was not allowed when presented to FERA authorities. Dr. M. F. Arnholt, head of the health department, says that the FERA is responsible for the payment of the amount.

Pension Problem—One of the indirect problems incurred by old age pension agitation comes before County Judge Reid each day in the form of three or four letters from California and Washington asking information concerning marriage licenses issued in Lancaster county years ago. Since those two states ask that old age pension applicants show proof of their age, the applicants are forced to request copies of their marriage licenses because almost no birth certificates issued 60 years ago are on record. Incidentally, the applicants must pay $1 for a certified copy.

Wiley Denies Charge — Guy Wiley, colored, proprietor of a cafe at 223 North Ninth street, pleaded not guilty in Municipal court Saturday to two charges growing out of a raid at his place of business earlier in the week. Bond on each case was set at $100, and trial was set for Sept. 24. One complaint charged him with operating a gaming place without a license, and the other with providing entertainment other than music at a place where beer is sold. Thursday he entered a not guilty plea to another charge, that of operating a disorderly house. Bond was fixed at $200 and trial set for Sept. 23 on that complaint.

Italy Rejects League Proposals For Peace

strategic importance along Spain's Mediterranean coastline.

Door Believed Still Open.

ROME, Sept. 21—(AP)—Italy's Duce-dominated cabinet today turned down the League of Nation's peace plan—but its rejection was couched in language so friendly that many believed the door was open for further negotiations.

The rejection was made on the ground that the Geneva proposals "do not offer a minimum basis sufficient for a conclusive realization which finally and effectively would take into account Italy's vital rights and interests."

Il Duce, who alone holds eight cabinet portfolios, made a full, up-to-the-minute report of the political and military situation, the communique stated.

Then he explained the league committee's report.

The cabinet examined the proposals attentively but found it could not accept them.

Another Meeting Tuesday.

Another meeting of the ministers was called for Tuesday "to follow developments in the political situation and to complete the order of the day with regard to administrative affairs," the communique announced.

In government circles it was said the meeting was called for Tuesday because, it was hoped, the five-power committee's proposals will be so modified by that time as to permit Italy to reconsider them.

On Tuesday, therefore, there was a possibility a different kind of answer might be given to a peace-seeking world.

Explanation Offered.

GENEVA, Sept. 21—(AP)—An Italian spokesman said today the action of Italy's cabinet in rejecting the League of Nations' peace plan implies that revised proposals would receive the most friendly consideration by the Italian government.

The spokesman also asserted the cabinet's communique constitutes the first official recognition of the league's meditations.

Baron Pompeo Aloisi, head of the Italian delegation, was said by his countrymen to have been instructed by Mussolini himself to explain the communique in this sense to the five-power committee which formulated the proposals.

Il Duce's "no" dropped on the league like a bomb in an empty house.

Threat Of Coal Strike Monday Faces Country

Negotiations For New Wage And Hour Contract Break Down

WASHINGTON, Sept. 21—(AP)—The country was threatened anew today with the prospect of a call for a soft coal strike Monday morning.

Negotiations between Appalachian producers and the United Mine Workers for a new wage and hour agreement broke down last night for the sixth time in six months.

The present contract expires Sunday midnight Unless a new agreement is signed before that time, or the government obtains a sixth extension of the old one, the union, its leaders say, will order its members in the bituminous fields to stay out of the mines Monday morning.

The government is trying to avert a walkout. But just what form the government proposal would make remained undisclosed. Edward F. McGrady, assistant secretary of labor, informed President Roosevelt of the situation by telegram last night. He expected a reply during the day.

New Extension Opposed.

Although John L. Lewis, president of the mine workers, would not comment, it was understood another extension of the old agreement would be unsatisfactory to the union.

The operators, ever since the negotiations started last February 18, have answered demand for wage increases with an offer to renew the present scale until next April 1.

Enactment of the Guffey stabilization, failed to bring the miners and producers together even though it was designed to enable producers to pay higher wages through price fixing.

The producers contend they cannot afford to increase coal prices because of competition from fuel oil and natural gas.

District Sunday School Superintendents Open Two-Day Conference

Dr. F. M. Gregg of Nebraska Wesleyan university, president of the Methodist laymen of Nebraska and for years Sunday school superintendent of the First Methodist church, told about 35 Lincoln district Sunday school superintendents Saturday morning that to increase attendance at church, Sunday school must first convince people that the program is worthwhile and secondly have a special church officer, the director of expansion, to cover the district and promote attendance.

The superintendents opened their first annual two day meeting at the First Methodist church Saturday morning under the direction of Rev. Roy Spooner, district superintendent, and Rev. Frank Finch, conference director of religious education.

The morning session was opened by Rev. Spooner, and preceding Dr. Gregg, Rev. Frank I. King, director of religious education for the Methodist church in Nebraska, led a forum discussion on problems of superintendents. An inspection of the First Methodist church Sunday school library and facilities was scheduled for the afternoon, and Rev. Finch was also to lead a discussion on Christian personality. A banquet will be held Saturday evening at the church, and Sunday the conference will continue with further consideration of Sunday school problems.

Cochran Expects To Call Lawmakers Soon

eral donation. The co-operative plan contemplates that each will provide half the money needed for this purpose.

Because of this uncertainty, certain loosely drawn provisions in the O'Brien old age pension law, which is not affected by the Supreme court decision, may have to be changed. One of them is the specific provision for $30 a month pension, regardless of whether the United States government contributes any money or not.

Number Uncertain.

Nobody knows how many pensioners will be on the eligible list when it is completed for the whole state. At present, 8,000 applications have been approved by county boards and by State Pension Commissioner B. F. Perry, but the roster is far from complete. It includes no names at all from Douglas county, as yet; but that county is expected to report several thousand. Perry's guess is that the state total will exceed 25,000, when all are in, and may reach 30,000.

To pay the state's half of $30 a month pension to 25,000 persons would require the sum of $9,000,000 a year, or more that twice the amount of direct property taxes levied for the support of the state government. This, of course, could not be done without greatly increasing taxation in some form or other.

Favors Gas Tax.

Governor Cochran favors continuing the 1-cent special gasoline tax levy and the use of excess liquor revenue for relief and old age pensions; but he was committed in his campaign pledges a year ago against any new forms of taxation, such as an income or sales tax, and has steadfastly adhered to this policy. The democratic legislature is bound by a party platform plank to the same effect.

To make the O'Brien law more workable, some safeguards against fraud and to confine its benefits to those actually in need of them will have to be written into it at the special session. As it now stands, the law would allow inmates of homes supported with private funds to draw old age pensions, though they are already being adequately cared for. The act also makes no provision for checking up on pension lists by any state agency, while it imposes restrictions on publicity that might serve as a cover under which individuals not legally eligible could receive benefits.

Narrows Scope.

Governor Cochran said that the special session will be devoted to welfare legislation and corrective measures, and that its scope will not be widened to take in anything else. The program will, of course, include all provisions necessary to meet requirements of the national security act.

Smith Denies Plot To Burn York Home

YORK, Neb., Sept. 21—(AP)—Leland Smith, on the witness stand for the defense in his trial on arson charges, today denied he plotted with Vernon Beauseigneur, star prosecution witness, to burn the Smith home on the outskirts of York last February 15, as charged by the state.

The defense is seeking to establish the theory the fire resulted from defective wiring.

Mrs. Smith Friday afternoon testified in behalf of her husband. She denied any conspiracy to burn the Smith residence existed.

The case is expected to be given to the jury late Saturday.

Asks Dismissal

Motion for dismissal of illegal possession of liquor charges against Leonard Wright because of insufficient evidence Saturday was filed in District court by County Attorney Max Towle. Wright was arrested March 23 and on April 26 of this year was found guilty as charged and fined $100 and costs by Municipal Judge John L. Polk. Wright appealed and went free on bond, the records show.

Fatal Accident On Highway Near Fullerton; Southern Executive Heard By Large Crowd

Woman Killed When Car Hits Roadside Bank

Two Men Critically Injured In Motor Crash South Of York

FULLERTON, Neb., Sept. 21 —(AP) — Mrs. Earl Davison of Fullerton, about 40, was injured fatally in an automobile accident on the highway west of Fullerton Friday night. She died a few minutes after the car which she was driving crashed into a bank at the roadside.

Authorities said they believed some faulty mechanism in Mrs. Davison's automobile caused her to lose control of it. The car swerved across the road, slipped in some loose gravel and headed into a bank. Mrs. Davison was thrown from her driving position and the car fell on her body inflicting fatal head and neck injuries.

Mrs. Lot Jenkins and her daughter were riding with Mrs. Davison, but both were uninjured.

Surviving are Mrs. Davison's husband and three children.

Two Badly Injured.

YORK, Neb., Sept. 21—(AP)—P. R. Farmer and Ben Ondrak, both of Exeter, were injured critically in a headon automobile-motor truck collision eight miles south of York Friday afternoon. Farmer's car and an oil transport owned by the Randall oil stations of Columbus and driven by Clarence Bisson were involved in the accident.

Physicians said they held little hope for Farmer's recovery. He suffered a crushed chest, internal injuries; and his right leg nearly was severed at the ankle.

Ondrak suffered a compound fracture of his left elbow, a fractured left knee and multiple cuts and bruises. He is in a semi-conscious condition in a hospital here.

The injured men were rushed to a York hospital after the wreckage of their cars was pulled apart to permit them to be extricated. Bisson suffered back injuries but remained at the scene of the accident.

Deputy Sheriff Milo Owen investigated the collision.

Evelyn Hoey Killed Self, Rogers Says

Oil Heir Tells Of Singer's Earlier Attempt To Commit Suicide

WEST CHESTER, Pa., Sept. 21 — (AP) — Henry Huddleston Rogers, jr., Standard Oil fortune heir, put behind him today the ordeal of more than two hours questioning and a record of his firm denial that he had any part in the death of Evelyn Hoey, "torch" singer of Broadway musicals.

Miss Hoey, he told a jury of six men and a packed courtroom last night, shot herself to death in his secluded Chester county farmhouse on the night of September 11 because "she was unhappy and depressed."

Rogers testified Miss Hoey attempted to leap from the window of a New York hotel a few weeks ago while they were conversing. He pulled her back, he said, when all but an arm and a leg were out of the window and she hurt her nose in the struggle.

"She was always moody when she was drinking," he said.

Rogers acknowledged his relations with the musical actress were intimate. He denied he wanted to "break off." He acknowledged doing considerable drinking at the farmhouse the afternoon and evening of the fatal day at the farmhouse and of talking sharply to her and refusing her request for an immediate departure to New York. He denied, however, there was a violent querral.

"I'd do anything in the world for her. I'd give my life for her."

BEAVER CITY, Neb., Sept. 21—(AP)—Darrell Slonecker of Edison was charged with manslaughter in County court here Friday in connection with the death of Mrs. Gwendolyn Chapman, 25, of Edison. He was unable to furnish a $500 bond and was placed in jail to await a District court trial in November.

Mrs. Chapman, who was riding in a motor truck with Slonecker and Marshall Stump, was killed as the truck ran off the road into a ditch.

Fred Reynolds of Edison and Russell Paine, who carried Mrs. Chapman to Edison following the accident Tuesday night, testified Friday that Slonecker and Stump were intoxicated. Stump was to face charges of intoxication in County court here Saturday.

Merrick County Is Against Tri-County

Protest Wired Washington After Central City Meeting

CENTRAL CITY, Neb., Sept. 21—(AP)—Merrick county citizens with an outdoor mass meeting on the main street here Friday night launched a fight to retain Platte river waters for the Platte valley and to oppose any diversion of the water to other watersheds.

Approximately 50 persons signed a resolution which was telegraphed to federal authorities in Washington opposing plans of the Tri-county project to take Platte river water for irrigation south of the Platte valley. The resolution read:

"We, citizens of Merrick county, wish to be understood that we are opposing the Tri-county project for the reason that it does divert waters of the Platte river to another watershed and to lands of such elevation as to preclude the possibility of seepage return. We are vitally interested in the Platte valley and the agricultural interests thereof and declare our determination to retain the waters of our river for the benefit of the Platte valley."

P. S. Heaton, Central City attorney, presided at the meeting called to "Save the great Platte valley."

O'Brien Is Speaker.

"The Platte valley wants only the water it needs," Sen. A. C. O'Brien of Grand Island told the men and women who gathered at a street intersection. Robert Rice, Central City newspaper editor, proposed the resolution and told the meeting,

"The water belongs to us and we should fight for it."

The resolution was telegraphed to President Roosevelt, Secretary Ickes and Harry Hopkins, in charge of WPA.

Gus Fonner, Grand Island landowner, recalled the days when the Platte river had lots of water and said he was determined to make a fight against any diversion.

Emil Stolley of Grand Island said if the water is diverted this section of the Platte valley will be turned into a desert.

"This will not happen if we have our rights," he added.

LOKER BOUND OVER THURSTON COUNTY SHOOTING CHARGE

PENDER, Neb., Sept. 21—(AP)—Luther Loker, Sioux City, was bound over to District court on a charge of shooting with intent to kill. Bond was fixed at $2,000. The case will come up for trial at the session of the court which convenes Sept. 30.

The alleged shooting involves an incident which took place May 15 at the farm home of Loker's father-in-law, Thomas Hunter, in eastern Thurston county. Loker was charged with firing a revolver during an argument over the possession of his child which was living with its mother at the Hunter home.

A state witness testified that Loker and two other men broke down a door at the Hunter farm and Loker fired his revolver narrowly missing both Mr. Hunter and his wife.

Burnetts Host To Record Sized Crowd At N. U. Reception

Freshmen and upper classmen turned out in larger numbers Friday evening than ever before, crowding the corridors of Morrill hall at the annual student reception tendered by Chancellor E. A. Burnett of the University of Nebraska.

Although the receiving line was reduced to include only Chancellor and Mrs. Burnett, Dean and Mrs. T. J. Thompson, Dean Amanda Heppner and Registrar Florence McGahey, the queue of students and faculty lined both sides of the second floor corridor, extending nearly the full length of the hall.

Gallery A, featuring the annual art exhibit, was a special attraction of the evening, opening the annual series of exhibitions. Garden flowers and greenery added to the artistic arrangement, filling every niche and corner.

The general reception committee included the deans of the various colleges and their wives, and different faculty groups presided as hosts on the museum floors, and assisted in serving pineapple ice.

Man Hurt In Fall From Haystack, Is Improving

Thomas Groves, 62, 932 P street, who was seriously injured in a 20 foot fall from a haystack while working at the George D. Wertz farm, three and a half miles north of Lincoln, late Friday afternoon, was reported as resting well at St. Elizabeth hospital Saturday.

Dr. W. H. Slattery, who attended him at the Wertz home and ordered him taken to the hospital, reported that while he has a concussion of the head and spine and numerous other bruises and injuries, he apparently has no broken bones, and his condition is not regarded as dangerous.

Groves was working at the top of a haystack and no one saw him fall. He was unconscious when picked up at the base of the stack a short time later, by Bob and George Wertz, who carried him into the house.

Korn Karnival Crowd At Plattsmouth Sees Two Couples Married

PLATTSMOUTH, Neb., Sept. 21—(AP)—A double wedding climaxed Friday night's festivities of Plattsmouth's Korn Karnival. A crowd estimated at 10,000 witnessed the wedding, in which Miss Helen Messersmith of Plattsmouth became the bride of Lawrence Malmos of Omaha; and Miss Geraldine Suddith of Plattsmouth became the bride of Cecil Schall, also of Plattsmouth.

The marriages were performed by Dr. H. G. McClusky, Presbyterian pastor. Miss Norma Baungardt and Miss Lavonne Worstall were maids of honor. The newlyweds were taken to Omaha after the services.

Another event of the day was a husband calling contest, in which Mrs. Will Troop and Mrs. Fred Daucker tied for first place. Several comedy entrants in this event called eligible bachelors of Plattsmouth, without result.

In an amateur entertainment contest Billy Reddy, 9, pianist, won first, and Irene Lahoda, 7, tap dancer, second.

A parade of 105 floats was held during the afternoon.

D. O. Dwyer addressed an Old Settlers reunion, and the Peru training school band played an evening concert.

IRRIGATED COMMUNITY GARDEN AND CANNING CENTER PROVIDE FOOD FOR WINTER USE BY KEARNEY'S NEEDY

(Special to The Star.)

KEARNEY, Neb., Sept. 21—Every city dweller who ever pulled weeds out of his tiny backyard garden plot would look at the irrigated NERA community garden and canning center here with something like amazement.

The area under cultivation is not large, as farm acreages go, but on the 18 acres being used by relief clients on the western edge of Kearney, truck garden crops are being harvested in wholesale fashion. And when the vegetables are gathered, a downtown canning center in an abandoned school building takes over the job of preparing food to carry needy families through the winter.

Beets, corn, tomatoes and beans make up the bulk of the 4,500 cans of produce preserved so far, but 12 persons are busy in the old school house every day putting up more savory food. Within the next few weeks, according to estimates by directors, some 1,000 bushels of tomatoes remain to be canned and half an acre of beans has not been touched.

In addition, there will be half an acre of onions and one and a half acres of carrots to be dried and stored after the canning is completed. One thousand cabbage plants were planted but even with the help of irrigation it was a bad luck year for this crop and J. F. McCarthy, local NERA work supervisor, who is enthusiastic about the rest of the project, makes no promises about cabbages.

At the canning factory, Miss Marjorie Smithey has supervision of the spick and span processing. Workers clean the vegetables thoroughly before they start through the mill and after being cooked, canned and steamed in special retorts the food emerges ready for the relief families who will get the NERA commodities this winter.

The Kearney community garden and canning factory is one of several similar relief food activities being operated in the state but, according to Director McCarthy, pump irrigation has made it more successful than most of the others.

5 Persons And 14 Race Horses Dead In Wreck

Illinois Train And Auto Driven By Farm Woman Collide

HILLSBORO, Ill., Sept. 21—(AP)—Five persons and 14 race horses died near here in the collision of the Century of Progress, Chicago & Eastern Illinois railway train, and an automobile driven by a farm woman.

Wrecking crews worked through the night clearing the overturned locomotive, baggage car and a car which carried the horses, from a tangled mass of track where the westbound train and the car crashed late yesterday.

Six men riding in the car with the horses were seriously injured but not a passenger was hurt. Two waiters in the dining car were slightly injured. The passenger cars left the rails but did not overturn.

The dead: Edward Edlemesser, engineer, about 55; Dan McDougal, fireman, about 55; Henry Smitha, 45, road foreman, all of Villa Grove, Ill.; Mrs. Edward Dammann, Hillsboro, driver of the auto, and an unidentified man.

The seriously injured were jockeys or attendants.

Plan Organization Develop Irrigation North Side Of River

KEARNEY, Neb., Sept. 21—(AP)—Commissioners from Buffalo, Hall and Dawson counties indicated a meeting may be held soon to organize a legal district for the promotion of a plan for ditch irrigation of 426,000 acres of land north of the Platte river channel.

The county commissioners met here to hear the plan explained by Clark Mickey, University of Nebraska college of engineering instructor.

"This development and the Tri-County, if built, would be the most comprehensive irrigation development in the world, and the most profitable," Mickey said. "You have the water, you have the land and you have the opportunity of building up soil by nitrogen-fixing products and triple your production."

Mickey said $10,000 to $15,000 would cover the preliminary cost of the first unit of the project.

Talmadge Gives History Lesson In Seward Talk

3,500 Hear Georgian On Constitution; Touches On Political Angles

By A Staff Correspondent.

SEWARD, Neb., Sept. 21 — Speaking on "Our Constiution" before a crowd of 3,500 who gathered in the outdoor ampitheater here, Governor Eugene Talmadge of Georgia covered a series of topics ranging from the Spartan code drawn by Lycurgus to England's Magna Charta and America's constitution.

The Georgia executive, though he held himself to non-partisan discussion the major portion of the time, occassionally stepped over the borderline to lash out at the New Deal.

The Georgia governor's talk followed a street parade around courthouse square and numbers by the York drum and bugle corps directed by Peter Mehan and by the Concordia Teachers college band under direction of Karl Hasse. The Seward high school band, the American Legion units, the Seward scout troop, the Women's Relief Corps and grade and high school pupils also participated in the parade.

Introduced By Matzke.

After reading of the Constitution Day proclamation of Mayor George Thomas by Ed O. Goehner, Americanism chairman of the legion post, Governor Talmadge was introduced by Stanley Matzke, post commander.

Matzke, who last week drew fire from Governor R. L. Cochran for bidding the fiery Georgian to address an American Legion meeting when the affair would become "political," prefaced his introduction with Voltaire's epigram on free speech: "I may not believe in what you say, but I'll defend with my life your right to say it."

Governor Talmadge, during the fore part of his address, touched upon the days of Valley Forge, upon the heroic background of the American constitution. Pointto South America he declared that "lack of constitution and consequent unstable government has been the thing which has brought about the downfall of those countries time after time."

Few Farm Folk.

The Seward audience, which contained but few farm folks and was made up largely of local citizens and representatives of legion posts from 25 surrounding towns, applauded when Talmadge quoted a remark once made by President Lincoln: "After acquiring power as president it would be highly improper for me to use that power to break the constitution of our country."

Comparing the American government to a ship, "which needs an anchor to hold true when a gale is blowing," Talmadge emphasized that the United States needs the constitution as an anchor in times of stress and hysteria.

"When hysteria breaks out it often attacks people in high places, people of the most educated sort," Talmadge said, pointing to Nebraska's anti-German language law which was put on the statutes of the state at one time and later declared unconstitutional.

Mystic Warning.

The gentleman from Georgia then turned a brief and rapid barrage of oratorical shell-fire on the present national administration, invoking a mystic warning.

"When they go so far as to legislate when the people of this country must sow and must reap, by bureau and by board, there'll be a famine in this land.

"We've seen regimentation legislation on wages and hours. It takes time to test the Constitutionality of a measure and in the meantime property and human rights may be swept away.

"It is the solemn duty of our legislators to determine the constitutionality of acts before they are passed and no chief executive should insist on the passage of any measure if its constitutionality is doubtful." (Applause.)

The speaker, across whose face a broad grin played much of the time, mixed levity with gloomy prophecy. He invited the entire audience to come "down Georgia way this winter and go swimmin' 'bout Christmas time."

Constitution On Trial.

"Sectionalism is gone," he cried. "We need you as bad as you need us. The Constitution of our country is on trial today and next year too, now don't you doubt it. We've got to protect it from all the "isms" in the world in these days when governmental expenses have increased four-fold and lawmakers are still looking for sumpin' else to tax."

In the closing moments of his address he harangued the crowd with a comic allusion to the recent "potato bill." "Now if ya wanta raise 'em you gotta get a license an' if you don't they'll slap a $1,000 fine or 12 month in jail on ya,' 'he chirruped.

He pointed with alarm to "the direction the country is headed," and blamed it on "those parlor and lounge lizards back in Washington and those brain-trustin' professors who had all the common sense educated out of 'em."

A red herring was left across the trail by the speaker as he said regimentation of American people started in Europe and after the World war burst forth in red flame. "Since then our Communistic philosophers have been arguing the necessity for a change in the constitution of the United States—but it won't happen in America."

Others who co-operated with Matzke and Goehner in making arrangements for the meeting insluded Ed Geesen, parade chairman, and C. W. Maltby, Art Bek, Art Stark, A. L. Floto, and Carl McGrew, post adjutant.

Matzke, a republican, Goehner, an anti-New Deal democrat, and McGrew, an administration democrat, had gone together to Omaha Thursday evening where they urged Talmadge to stick closely to non-controversial topics in his Friday night address.

Governor Talmadge left Seward by train for Omaha Friday evening. At Omaha he boarded a plane Saturday morning and was winging his way back to Atlanta, expecting to arrive there about sundown.

Celebrate Founders Day, Doane College

Principal Feature Of Occasion Is Address By Prof. Stephens

(Special to The Star.)

CRETE, Neb., Sept. 21—Knowledge may be either dangerous or beneficial depending on the person possessing it, Prof. H. B. Stephens said Friday at the Doane college founders day celebration in Lee memorial chapel.

"Present developments in Europe suggest that whether science will wreck civilization or cumulatively enrich our lives is a matter largely to be determined by the co-operative altruism of coming generations," said Professor Stephens. "A lovely little memorial bridge was recently dedicated on the Doane college campus to the Doane men whose lives emphasized service to their fellows. In many instances this service is primarily influencing adherence to high principles in positions of national prominence in various business and professional fields."

The worship of mere bigness for its own sake is happily passing along with the recent over emphasis on material rather than spiritual and intellectual possessions according to Prof. Stephens. "Some of our largest buildings are monuments to financial folly," he said; "some of our largest institutions have been losing original values because of their increasing complexity."

Prof. Stephens' address which brought the founders day program to a close was preceded by the freshman matriculation ceremony and the announcement of scholastic honors for the last year by Dr. D. G. Burrage, registrar. Miss B. E. Donaldson, dean of women, presented the Alpha Lambda Delta scholarship cup for 1935-36.

Vote Water Bonds

GREELEY, Neb., Sept. 21—(AP)—Water bonds in the amount of $8,000 have been voted by Greeley voters. The tally was 90 for and 17 against. The bonds were approved last April by a vote of 180 to 29 but the election was ruled illegal because the word "extension' was included on the ballots.

Gage Fair Pays

Raising Relief Money Purely State Problem

Washington Official Says It Is Entirely Up To Nebraska.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 21—(AP)—Told that the Nebraska state relief assistance law had been declared unconstitutional by a state court, federal relief officials were inclined to view it as purely a state problem.

No definite statement was forthcoming as to whether federal relief grants to Nebraska would be suspended. Relief officials, however, said the intention of the emergency relief administration was to end direct relief grants to states by November, 1, or as soon thereafter as its quota of employables were given work relief jobs. With this in view states were asked to raise funds for taking over direct relief, still received after that date.

Will Study Case.

Harry L. Hopkins, the administrator, was not available for comment on the decision, but a relief administration spokesman pointed out that a September FERA direct relief grant already had been made to Nebraska. The state's case, he indicated, would be studied in the week to ten days remaining before October allotments were made. He said the Nebraska problem was similar to those faced at different times in several states.

"We don't tell the states how to raise their funds," h said. "That is purely a state problem. All we asked was that they raise them. We expect Nebraska to do its share for its unemployed. How it does it, we don't care."

Apparently, he said, the principle effect of the Nebraska court decision would be to raise the question of how Nebraska would handle its relief problem.

At his press conference Thursday Hopkins emphasized that the government felt no responsibility beyond its pledge to put 3,500,000 employables back to work.

Farmstead Children Still Out Of School

Parents May Bring Court Action In Hall County Soon

(Special to The Star.)

GRAND ISLAND, Neb., Sept. 21—School doors were still closed to children of federal farmstead families near here Friday, but parents were on the verge of starting court action to get their youngsters in school.

While neighbor children were trudging down the road to their third week of classes, 24 prospective pupils who live in the federal aid farmstead homes were barred from attending district school when the school board this fall refused enrollment to the kiddies. Board members held they were not responsible for the added number of pupils and would not let them register.

But the farmstead parents, according to Bob Hardie, manager of the Grand Island and two other similar projects in central Nebraska, are laying plans to seek a court order compelling the board to open school facilities to their children.

Hardie said parents had watched a similar Dakota county injunction with interest and were heartened when the northern Nebraska court granted a temporary order in favor of the farmstead families there early this week.

The school which the children of the ten families would attend is a 10-grade rural unit only a short distance from the group of federal aid plots. Except for the school squabble, Hardie said, the families, are getting along fine" and the project "is in good shape."

Southern Hospitality Drips From Lips Of Gov. Talmadge As He Greets Seward Folks

Smiling and bowing graciously, Governor Eugene Talmadge was at his best Friday evening when, following his Seward address, he came down from the platform to shake countless hands and exchange pleasantries with the good folk of the community.

It wasn't the determined man who called out the state militia to clip the political wings of a state highway commissioner opposed to him, nor the spell-binder who has raised his voice across a nation to shout epithets at Washington, who was shaking hands with the Seward crowd. It was the farmer-gentleman type of politician giving his deepest attention, and with obvious pleasure too, to his fine art. The people streamed past him.

"I'm glad to shake hands with you governor."

"Thank yuh maam, thank yuh."

"I was glad to hear you take a shot at the child labor amendment governor," this from a man of forty-five.

"Got to Watch It."

"Wall, you betcha, but we've got to watch it. They'll try to slip that over on us if we aren't careful."

"Say governor, you ain't radical like the papers say you are, you're real sensible." This from a farmer.

"Waal," Talmadge laughs, "I guess yuh gotta be radical now to be conservative. Glad to see yuh suh. You know I sure am glad I got to get down here tonight. It's been a real pleasure. I've always longed to see Nebraska and it's a great state. Why the fertility of its soil puts Georgia to shame."

"Glad to meet you governor, you're a real American." This from an old man.

"What's your name, suh? Scott? Waal, mighty glad to see yuh suh."

"Come And See Me."

The governor pauses and raises his voice. "Now all you folks, I want yuh to be sure and see me if you come to Georgia. You know the best part about goin' to Florida is that you gotta go through Georgia to get there."

Then he turns to a little girl, a big white ribbon in her hair.

"What's your name? Marylou? Waal I sure am glad to se yuh honey."

Another man steps up. "You sure made a hit with me, governor."

"Thank yuh suh. I appreciate the great honor you folks heve paid me here."

And so, ever gracious, ever genial, friendly and intimate, Governor Talmadge was practicing his craft.

DOWN TO REALITIES.

THE immediate and the permanent results of the decision of the Nebraska Supreme court Friday, nullifying what are called the assistance laws passed by the last legislature, are unmistakable.

Governor Cochran should, and undoubtedly will, call a special session of the legislature to meet a situation which involves not only the constantly changing problems of relief, but the far more imposing and complicated question of social security, most particularly embraced in a program of old age pensions. For the great masses in America, the issue of social security represents in the main an unexplored field. They have thought of this America in the old terms of a land of milk and honey, a land of opportunity, where men and women willing to work, anxious to work, forced to work by their own economic position, still are unable to work, because changes in business, the increased efficiency and improvement in mechanics, the amazing advance in machinery itself no longer require or permit employment in the old sense.

By way of illustration, just one trend that has come in industry and in business, and that is becoming more pronounced each year as humming factories cry for speed, for a shaving in costs, for the production of commodities at the very lowest possible fraction of expense, should bring any thoughtful person to attention. Where manual labor is involved, the heavy goods factories do not want old men. They want youth—youth with its virile young strength, its zip, its zest, its enthusiasm, its buoyancy, and its pep. They have pronounced a death sentence against the man of fifty or sixty years of age. They did it unintentionally, perhaps, but when they did it, they didn't end their responsibility there. For that man is going to live on, possibly twenty-five or thirty years, and if they deny him the opportunity to work, which they have, they still are going to compute him in the costs of doing business, because in this country, as in all other countries of democratic ideals and humanitarian impulses, they are going to take care of him one way or another. And that development has made itself felt in the retail field, in jobbing, in every line of business activity.

THIS state is fortunate in comparison to others in this respect. It hasn't a great industrial population, and a large number of crowded, throbbing cities. It is agricultural, and the bulk of its population either lives on farms or in towns or cities which can be said to be essentially rural in their atmosphere.

And yet Nebraska does have a social security problem. At the last session of the legislature, an old age pension plan was presented, which if met solely through state revenues, would have placed a burden of 20 million dollars per biennium upon the people of Nebraska. This is computed on the basis that when the final check is completed by Commission Perry, it will show that 26,000 people can qualify for old age pensions. If the state and the federal governments were to match funds equally, it would add 10 millions to the tax burden. These figures can be reduced to realities simply by directing attention to the facts that today the state raises, through direct taxes on real estate, approximately 5½ millions a year for all purposes of state government, or 11 millions for the biennium.

Naturally, if there is to be a federal social security program, Nebraska will want to fit her plans in with that national program. The wise course calls for careful, deliberate, and unprejudiced study of it, possible now when it was impossible a few months back at the time the legislature was passing this assistance legislation, because at that time, congress had not acted. There should be careful study without loss of time and then legislative action through a special session to meet perhaps the most pressing problem in Nebraska at this time.

SO far as relief is concerned, the controversy in connection with it comes from three quarters:

1—The inevitable patronage storm created by widespread distressing unemployment, by unfortunate people, harassed and in search of jobs, who want the jobs occupied by others and who insist they could handle it better than the people to whom relief administration has been entrusted. To this should be added still another considerable factor—that is, political leaders who would utilize the relief agencies to build up their own personal political machine.

2—Those on relief, and they are comparatively few in comparison to the aggregate number handled, who feel they are entitled to more than they receive, and who most of all resent the suggestion they should go to work.

3—Those who expect to pay the bill for relief, and in this group are some who believe that government should not lift a finger toward the alleviation of distress and destitution.

In between these groups are the great masses of American people. They are not concerned with patronage, with political machines, with politics, with those who have come to believe the government owes them a living in idleness, or those so indifferent and so flinty that they can look at the appalling tragedy of want and of actual physical sacrifice and self-denial that amount to slow starvation without blinking an eyelid.

It's easy enough to criticise and to say that within the nation and the state, relief has been handled in bungling, inefficient fashion. It's easy enough to find fault with everything that is done. But it will take thought, careful thought, to meet the problems of this day. As the whole problem of relief has unfolded, it hasn't been possible to formulate regulations or to develop permanent administrative plans for a period of sixty days. Constantly, the picture changes as new currents enter in, and constantly the rules and the regulations have to be revamped to meet those unexpected new developments. This newspaper believes America, which long postponed decision on a most human problem, inherited something more from the depression than the losses, financial or economic, that in part already have been written off and swallowed. For the first time in its existence, America should recognize that the beckoning promises of a new country provide no safety valve against an explosion. For the first time, the country should attempt to measure the new responsibility of a mechanical age. If it fails to go forward with this task, then it will pay the price.

KEROSENE FOR STARTING FIRES

WITHIN the past week three people have lost their lives in Nebraska as the result of attempting to start fires in stoves by the use of kerosene. There is nothing new in news items of this kind; they have appeared in newspapers throughout the country with regularity for generations, and it is probable that they will continue to appear.

In the earlier days, however, there were quite as many of these fatalities in cities and towns as occurred in rural sections. That was before the use of fuel gas and electricity became general, and the kitchen range or cook stove was to be found in every home. The kerosene can was ever present, for kerosene lamps were used for illuminating purposes.

So, when a hurryup fire was desired the temptation to resort to the oil can was strong. And the longer one got by without a mishap the more careless one became, until conflagration taught its frequently deadly lesson. Now fuel gas and electricity are in use in all cities and towns and kerosene fatalities are very infrequent.

Now movements are under way to electrify rural districts all over the country, and these should have a tendency to reduce the danger from kerosene, though it is not to be expected that current will be used to a very great extent for cooking or heating until it is produced far more cheaply than at present. However, gas mains may in the not distant future be extended to farms, even as electrical lines are now being extended.

Warnings against the use of kerosene for starting fires seem to have done little good in the past and it is not probable that they ever will be heeded. So, until the use of the fluid for other purposes becomes a thing of the past it may be expected that such tragedies will continue.

LAY IN YOUR COAL NOW

THERE may or may not be a coal strike sufficiently widespread in extent to interfere seriously with production during the fall months; but this much is certain—anyone depending on that kind of fuel for warmth in his home or for any other purpose ought to be forehanded in stocking up in advance of such a contingency.

The householder or business manager who neglects to do this may find his delay costly. If there is any prolonged tieup in the coal fields of Pennsylvania, the effect is bound to be felt in higher prices for all grades of fuel. Both anthracite and bituminous coal are produced heavily in that state, making it the key to the whole situation.

Putting a few tons into the basement at this time, if one has not already done so, may be the means of saving enough dollars later on to make it well worth while. Your local coal merchant will be compelled to raise his price if future shipments from the mines cost him more. So, if one doesn't wish to make an unnecessary contribution to the coffers of the distant mine owners and the mine workers' union, it is the part of wisdom to "do it now."

It is unfortunate for the country that the dispute over wages, hours, and other conditions in the industry was not settled months ago. Apparently, the public is again going to be compelled to pay for a forced suspension of mining activities, unless the strike can be headed off, and this seems improbable.

Glenn C. Chadderdon, Salesman, Dies Here

Former Teacher Went To Law College At N. U. For Two Years.

Glenn C. Chadderdon, 42, 601 Marshall avenue, resident of Lincoln for five years, died at a local hospital early Saturday morning following an illness of two months. Since coming to Lincoln he had attended the University of Nebraska law school for two years and was a salesman for a law publishing firm. He was a member of Shrine club and Elm Park Methodist church.

Born in Stockville, Mr. Chadderdon received his public school education in that community, and then attended Kearney Normal for two years before going into the teaching profession in the Grand Island vicinity. In 1920 he moved to Cambridge where he ran a garage and was a member of the school board.

Surviving are his wife, Edith; two sons, Darrell and Norris, all Dickens, and Ellis of Rayville, aL.; one sister, Miss Hester Chadderdon of Ames, Ia., and his mother, Sarah, of 5127 Cleveland avenue, Lincoln. The body is at Castle, Roper & Matthews.

Funeral services will be held at 10 o'clock Monday morning at Elm Park Methodist church, Rev. Victor West officiating. Robert Bellamy will sing. Place of interment has not been decided.

Ager Predicts Heavy Loss Of Trees Unless Given Water At Once

Loss of trees in Lincoln during the coming winter "will be appalling if they are not given an abundance of water between now and cold weather," Chet Ager, park executive said Saturday.

The drouth of last summer so thoroughly sapped the soil of moisture, according to the park director, that the plentiful rains of this year have not been sufficient to restore the ground to its former condition. The rains have soaked down only 18 inches, and this is not enough.

Mr. Ager suggests trenching around the trees. Where lawns are sprinkled he urges that a slow spray be allowed to run all day, instead of only for a few hours.

Both Park Superintendent Oren S. Copeland and Mr. Ager were happy as a result of their project for removal and replacing of the dead trees in the parks has been approved by the WPA. There are more than 3,000 to take out, they said.

DIET AND HEALTH

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D., Author of "The Human Body."

REPORTING OF MAGAZINE BOTHERS CORRESPONDENTS.

An eminent publication prints a letter from Eye Surgeon Langdon of Philadelphia, protesting against an article on "Cortin for Glaucoma."

"I have a great many people afflicted with glaucoma under my care, and you have no idea the harm such an article does. The effect of cortin, as distinguished from adrenalin is not definitly known at the present time. The hopes of the public are unjustifiably raised, and one who practice ophthalmology has seen cases where an emotional storm has brought on an acute attack of glaucoma with complete loss of vision."

Responds the magazine: "Many medical men have been conditioned to believe that their doings and thinking enjoy a sacred immunity from the ordinary processes of human curiosity. Well does this periodical know the problem of reporting scientific news, but its Responsibility TOWARD SCIENCE (the caps are mine) differs no whit from its responsibility toward news of othre human affairs.

"In this case, Dr. Langdon's quarrel is not with this periodical, but with Dr. Josephson, whose report on cortin in a reputable publication we accurately reported."

Wet is the magazine on this issue, and correct Eye Surgeon Langdon, in our opinion, and well do we know, too, the problem of reporting scientific news. That an immature and clinically unconfirmed report appears in one publication, reputable it may be, but whose readers are supposed to be conditioned to evaluate the difference between experimental suggestions and proved research problems, does not relieve the editor of a journal of wide and very general circulation of responsibility of selection and anticipation of just such criticism as Dr. Langdon advances.

Distressing to Correspondents.

Distressing to a few of my own correspondents also was this same periodical's report of the International Neurological congress in London. Raynaud's disease and its treatment occupied much of this discussion. This treatment is used by one whom the publication called "Mayo Clinic's handsome senior brain surgeon, Dr. Alfred Washington Adson." (All the brain doctors that week were handsome save only unadjectived Dr. George Elgie Brown—how are you, George?) Raynaud's disease consists of a change in the color, temperature and vitality of the fingers or toes (rarely nose or ears), probably due to changes in the muscular tone of the arteries. Mild cases are like chilblains and may never get worse. What distressed my correspondents was the summary: "He believes that the real trouble lies somewhere in the brain of the nuerotic young women who develop Raynaud's disease."

Since one of my correspondents has written half a dozen successful books, she wonders just what is the matter with her brain.

Cringed, I suspect, handsome Dr. Adson as he read the report.

Sensational rather than responsible is our verdict on the attitude of the periodical's medical editor toward his public.

BURGESS BEDTIME STORIES

By Thornton W. Burgess.

The Laggard

The one who lags will some day find
He can't catch up; he's left behind.
—Old Mother Nature.

No one wants to be left behind, but some people are naturally laggards, and such people sooner or later are left behind, whether they want to be or not. Mrs. Wood Duck now had a brood of eleven. In spite of all her watchfulness and care, she had lost one. A little fellow who, all along causing her a lot of worry because of his willfulness, had been caught by Sharpshin the Hawk. All his brothers and sisters had seen him caught. They had seen him caught and carried away. Of course, his mother had been very much upset. When the danger was over she had gathered her little brood close around her.

"You have all seen," said she, "what a dreadful thing has happened to one who is wilful and disobedient. Your brother you may never see again, and all because he didn't keep still when he was hiding. I hope this has been a lesson you will never forget."

"It will!" cried all the Ducklings sorrowfully.

"And I hope," continued Mrs. Wood Duck, "that you all had a good look at that fellow Sharpshin the Hawk, and that you will know him the next time you see him, even though he may be as far away as you can see. Now follow me, and keep close to me. We are going down to thank Mrs. Quack for the timely warning which she gave me. Remember and keep close to me. There is no knowing what may happen if you don't."

Mrs. Wood Duck led them across the upper pond, over the dam, into the Laughing Brook connecting with the lower pond.

Now, there was one little Duck who always lagged behind. It wasn't because he wasn't as strong as his brothers and sisters, for he was. It was jut because he was naturally lazy. It was a habit with him, a very bad habit, as his mother had tried to make him understand what a bad habit was and how dangerous such a habit might be.

"One of these days," said she, "there'll be sudden danger and you'll be so far behind that you won't know what to do. You'll be alone. If you keep right close with the rest of us, where I can tell you what to do, you'll be all right, but if you lag behind you will sooner or later be left behind and then you will be sorry."

Mrs. Wood Duck led her brood out onto the pond where Mrs. Quack was. She saw Mrs. Quack and the four young Quacks over by the house of Paddy the Beaver. She began swimming a little faster, so that the Ducklings had to paddle very fast in order to keep up with her. She was anxious to get over where she could tell Mrs. Quack what had happened. She turned her head just for a hasty look at her brood. She didn't notice that one was missing. You see, the little laggard was still back in the Laughing Brook. He was taking his time.

"I guess I can take care of myself," said he.

"There is no sense in hurrying," said he to himself. "I don't care if the others do get ahead...I guess I can catch up with them any time I want to. It's a warm day, and I don't like hurrying."

So he dropped farther and farther behind. He stopped to poke about in the mud, to see if there was something good for him to eat. At last he reached the end of the brook, and there before him was the lower pond of Paddy the Beaver. He half expected to find his mother waiting for him there. She wasn't. Neither she nor any of his brothers and sisters was there. He looked hastily all about. He couldn't see anybody. No, sir, he couldn't see anybody. You see, his mother had led the rest of the family along the shore and they were already half-way around to where Mrs. Quack and her four youngsters were. Being close inshore, they could not easily be seen, and the little laggard did not see them at all.

At first he had a dreadful feeling of fright. Gradually he got over this. He began to feel that he was very bold and brave. He began to think that this was an interesting adventure. "I guess I can take care of myself," said he. "Probably mother will come back and look for me, anyway, so I may as well have a good time 'til she does come. I'm not afraid. Of course not. It is fun not to have some one tell you what you must do and mustn't do."

NYA Program Fails To Draw As Many Lincoln Students As Expected

There has not been the response to the national youth administration program, that was anticipated by school authorities in Lincoln, M. C. Lefler, superintendent of schools, said Friday. "Registration has no where near reached our expectation," he said.

The NYA was set up especially for these young folks who, because their families have been on relief, have not been able to graduate from the twelfth grade, Mr. Lefler said, estimating there are upwards of 200 here.

A definite amount has been allocated to Nebraska, according to Mr. Lefler, and if Lincoln young people do not take advantage of the opportunity, the money will go elsewhere. The amount per person is $6 per month. This can be used for incidental expenditures in connection with the school work of the person getting it.

The requirements are few. The parents of the applicant must have been on relief since May 1935, and the applicant must be over 16 years old. Application should be made direct to the principal of a high school.

Rev. West In Farewell Sermon Here Sunday

Rev. Victor West preaches his farewell sermon at Elm Park Methodist church Sunday morning at 11 o'clock. On Wednesday of next week Rev. and Mrs. West will move to their new home at Albion. Rev. West ,who has been at Elm Park for seven years, was assigned to the Albion pastorate at the Nebraska Methodist conference in Omaha last week. Indebtedness on Elm Park church has been paid off in full during the time Rev. West has been there. There has also been a steady increase in church memberships. A number of social affairs have been arranged by members of the congregation and by friends in farewell courtesy.

JUST FOLKS

By Edgar A. Guest.

OF SUCH STUFF IS MEMORY.

Memories are made of these:
Little words the babies say;
Games, which now and then we play;
Grandpas and their manners quaint;
China, grandmas used to paint;
Grace which mothers always said,
Thankful for our daily bread.
These the memory will hold
To be joyously re-told.

Memories are made of these:
Days when skies were overcast;
Strange adventures of the past;
Difficulties met somehow,
Tragic then, but comic now;
All the curious mistakes
Everybody living makes.
These the big things after all
That we tenderly re-called.

Memories are made of these:
Small mishaps from year to year;
Little whims of someone dear;
Tunes that someone used to play,
Now forever gone away;
Favorite jokes the father told,
Young today, but then so old!
These, when time has cast its spell,
We shall joyously re-tell.

MORNING STAR

— BY MARIAN SIMS —

SYNOPSIS Emily Felton has graduated from college with honors, and with three precious memories. One is Judith Carroll, the flashing roommate she had as a Freshman. One is Judith's brother, David, whom Emily promised to marry just before the Carrolls lost their fine old plantation. One is Charlotte, who succeeded Judith as roommate. But Judith is married, David is lost to her and sensible Charlotte has a job. Emily wonders, at the farewell dance, what she shall do.

Chapter 13.
PUZZLED.

Most of the dancers, she thought enviously, were going back to school next week; most of them had one more year between them and what the lecturers ominously called Life.

It was only tonight that she had realized that school was over. Summer had been just another vacation, just as all the summers before this had been vacations; but this was September—the first September she could remember when there was nothing definite ahead of her.

Jock Cushing cut in, grinning amiably.

Frances Felton had advocated a "year of play." "You've been away from us most of four years, and your father has counted so on having you at home," she had said subtly, realizing that Jeffrey's loneliness was her trump card.

"And besides, I think you really need a vacation. Graduating from Ardmore is a very severe mental and physical strain."

To Frances it would probably have been a severe strain, but Frances was not twenty-one and eager. Frances was forty-six, and above all cautious.

She was also determined that Emily should never become "strongminded," as the girls who went into the newer vocations invariably were; never realizing how completely out-worn the term had become.

And, partly because Emily had no counter-proposition to make, Frances had won her point. You couldn't put up a very stiff resistance to a thing when there was nothing you wanted very badly to do in its stead.

"A year of play." It sounded entrancing, but how did you go about it? With Edwin? Or with the youths who were at this moment shouting the belligerent words of the Washington and Lee Swing?

She had grown up with these boys; had seen them recently emerge from the awkward stages of adolescence; and whatever charms they might possess were blurred by familiarity, just as her own charms were probably blurred for them.

That, she decided, was why so many marriages were made between people from different towns; the snub-nosed boy you'd played with was invested, away from home, with the glamor of strangeness and mystery.

Jock Cushing cut in, grinning amiably. "What's your program for the year, Bachelor of Arts?"

She sighed, "I wish I knew, Bridge, I suppose, and the Woman's Club. Or maybe a troop of girl scouts."

He frowned. "It sounds bad. But then, you might be teaching school, and nothing could be worse than that. Bridge and girl scouts may help you to live down that Ardmore diploma, but if you begin to teach you're lost."

She laughed ruefully, thinking how Charlotte, for different reasons, had said the same thing. "But what's the use in getting a diploma if you have to live it down?"

He shrugged. "God knows, Especially with matrimony in the offing."

Her eyes widened in surprise. Was it, she wondered, such a foregone conclusion among her friends that she would marry Edwin? If she wasn't careful, the mere force of public opinion would push her into it. She shook her head.

"I hate to disappoint you, but it isn't."

Jock grinned. "No-oo?" he drawled, and relinquished her to another partner.

As if to give the lie to her denial, the partner was Edwin.

Edwin danced, as he did most things, smoothly and precisely, with a complete lack of abandon or imagination.

When the orchestra had drifted into "Good Night Ladies," Edwin said softly, "Would you like to get out before the crush starts?"

Ordinarily she rather liked crushes, and calling goodbys; but tonight there was too much of farewell in the goodbye. She nodded, and slipped away to find her wrap.

They were silent during the drive home, but then she and Edwin were silent oftener now. When there was nothing but surface subjects to discuss you eventually exhausted them, and Edwin had never yet lost his fear of abstract or intimate topics.

At the doorway he stopped the motor and laid his hand gently upon her arm. "Is it—too late to—talk a few minutes?"

The tone betrayed him. It was husky with emotion and nervousness, and Emily guessed with a sinking heart what was coming. She longed to put him off, but the thing had hung suspended so long above her head that there would be a certain relief in having it fall. She said quietly:

"I don't think so."

He cleared his throat and she wanted to laugh hysterically. It was like Edwin to make a formal proposal; if there had been room he might even have gone down on his knees to her!

"I wanted to—ask you to marry me," he began haltingly. "You must have known I love you; that I've loved you ever since we were children. Before this I wasn't in any position to tell you, but—now I am.

"I'm making three hundred and fifty dollars a month and we—could live comfortably on that. If you—could love me enough to marry me I'd be the happiest man on earth." He stopped abruptly and waited.

Suddenly, to her infinite disgust, she began to cry. She didn't want Edwin to love her like that because it gave him such a hold on her. You couldn't help feeling a certain pity and tenderness for a man whose devotion had been so enduring and so whole-hearted, even while you knew that you didn't return it and probably never would.

His distress was intense. "Emily!" he begged, laying an arm gently about her shoulders. "Please don't. I won't hurry you; I just wanted you to know."

She managed a shaky smile and the arm tightened, very slightly, about her shoulders. In a moment, if she didn't speak, he would be kissing her reverently, and she didn't want to be kissed reverently.

She wanted, when the time came, to be smothered, as David had smothered her. But this was certainly not the right time.

Call Mass Meeting To Discuss Low Cost Housing Proposal

A mass meeing of "all interests" involved in a low cost "slum cleaning" project for Lincoln has been called for 3 o'clock Sunday afternoon at Antelope park, Britt Bryor, president of Central Labor union, said, following a conference with Mayor Bryan. He was accompanied by Ernest Bock, secretary of the union.

Invitations to attend the meeting are being sent to the veterans organizations, contractors, builders bureau, material and lumber dealers, unemployed groups, unorganized labor, Townsend club, and organizations representing the colored population, he said. Each will be asked to send delegates authorized to speak.

The purpose of the meeting, Mr. Pryor said, is to obtain a mass endorsement of the project. Copies of the resolution will then be sent to the organizations represented with the request that each give the plan separate endorsements.

Campaign Launched To Protect Fish In State

A campaign against the blue heron, bittern, night heron and king fisher was launched here by Robert H. McDowell of Crawford, during a conference with Chet Ager, president of the Nebraska Fish and Game association. Because they are protected by the federal government, "these birds are costing the state at least a million dollars in fish alone, in 100 days during the summer," Mr. McDowell said.

A year ago a biological survey representative spent a month in and near Crawford studying the damage, at the request of Mr. McDowell. They found, he said, that a single bird of either species eats 100 small fish per day. In that section trout and bass are the principal victims.

Mr. McDowell is here visiting his sister, Mrs .Reg Roper.

The Emperor Entertains

Next week New York will see the "first million-dollar gate" since the glorious Dempsey-Tunney days and New York is excited.

Hotels will be crowded, night clubs busy, airplanes even now are bringing fight enthusiasts from all over America.

If Europe wants to interest this country or get any position on "the front page" after next Monday morning, it will have to do something very much worth while.

P. S. Surely too wise to bet, but you may like to know that one representing the "wise money," which means money of those that know what is "arranged," bet that Baer will knock out Joe Louis. The odds are three to one against that, and as Louis has never as yet been hit very hard, some "wise money" bets on a knockout. The really "wise money" will stay in its owner's pocket.

The Ethiopian emperor, who wants to visit the United States "after the present trouble is over," will be welcome, but this would be the time to come.

He would make a wonderful referee for the big fight, representing both sides of it, he the Semitic ruler of an Ethiopian African race.

If Baer should win, the emperor's branch of the human race would win, and if Louis should win, the emperor's people would win, which should make him impartial.

Haile Selassie, the Ethiopian emperor, gave a banquet to eighty assorted newspaper men and some of their wives at Addis Ababa, a good dinner. When the newspaper people bowed the emperor inclined his head "very slightly" and did not shake hands. George Washington also avoided shaking hands, and he was not an emperor, although he might have been.

The reporters ate on solid gold plates, but the electric lights went out often.

In Washington Mr. William Krebs, middle-aged, earning $20 a week, won the $20,000 prize in Mrs. Oliver Harriman's "treasure hunt" lottery. Mr. Krebs, dazzled, says, wisely, that he will visit his mother in Germany and, unwisely, that he expects to play pinochle and poker for higher stakes. That will be good news for those that know how to play pinochle and poker. Most wisely, he says, "I'm going to hang on to my job."

V. F. W. Anniversary

Members of Sgt. Richard L. Harris post No. 131, Friday night observed the thirty-sixth anniversary of the founding of the Veterans of Foreign Wars on Sept. 23, 1899. The affair was the first fall social meeting of the post, and was an open session in which the auxiliary had a part. J. W. McKibbin gave a history of the V. F. W. Mrs. Myrtle Rawson, state Americanization chairman, also spoke. Charles and Norman Rawson gave trumpet duets, Miss Jane Pierce, vocal duets, and Tiny Brooks, acrobatic dances. At the lunch which followed orchestral numbers, a birthday cake was lighted. J. W. McKibbin was in charge.

New Deal Remedies Offered By Johnson

Makes Five Suggestions To Eliminate Mistakes In Program

WASHINGTON, Sept. 21—(AP)—A five-point program which he said would eliminate "mistakes" of the new deal is proposed by Hugh S. Johnson.

Preparing to make some speeches as a friendly but vigorous critic of the administration, the former recovery administrator who is now director of the federal works program in New York City, emphasized there was no break between him and the white house.

Pledging "unswerving loyalty" to the president and declaring his aim was to be of service, he made these suggestions in an interview yesterday:

1. "The government ought to do no work that isn't essential useful and properly planned. In a time of crisis we might keep 1,000 000 people employed on such projects at a cost of around $3,000,000,000 a year. But the present WPA-PWA program is wholly impracticable. If you try to start a lot of work to employ 3,000,000 people on engineering projects, many of them will require over a year to complete and take billions more than the sum now available. If they aren't completed; every city in the country will be scarred with useless, unfinished structures.

2. "Relief—Call it the dole if you you like—should be provided where cities and states aren't able to bear the burden alone.

3. "A new NRA certainly should be enacted. Shortening hours of labor is the only real remedy for the pool of more than 10,000,000 unemployed which still exists. Rigid legislation like the Black 30-hour bill won't solve the problem. The new NRA ought to contain compulsory provisions for shortening hours and fixing minimum wages in consultation with industry. It ought to make provision also for purely voluntary trade practice agreements.

4. "Custom receipts which congress has made available for the purpose should be used to subsidize exports of goods manufactured from farm products. Secretary Wallace has gotten in a funk about his processing taxes and is using some of this (customs receipts) money to make benefit payments to cotton growers. The legislation is being prostituted so that it will intensify the very condition it was intended to remedy.

5. "At least some feeble attempt should be made to co-ordinate administration agencies. They are running all over the lot."

Wesleyan Rally

Students at Nebraska Wesleyan university attended a pre-season football rally Friday morning in the Wesleyan auditorium and heard Coach George Farley describe prospects for a good season as "the best in years." He pointed to the game with Greeley State Teachers college at Greeley, Colo., a week from Saturday as the toughest one of the season. John Roberts, director of physical education; Jerry Adam, line coach; and Dawdy Hawkins of Lincoln, quarterback and captain talked.

$15,000 Verdict Given Carl Burcham On Suit Involving Fall In Pit

A district court jury late Friday afternoon awarded Carl Burcham a $15,000 verdict in his $22,500 personal injury suit against Frank H. Campbell and John Clouse, operators of a filling station near Seventeenth and Q streets where Burcham fell into a grease pit a year and a half ago. When the suit was filed, the National Refining company was also named as a defendant but was dismissed without prejudice on motion of the plaintiff. Burcham claimed permanent injury from the fall which occurred when he stepped from his car and tumbled into the pit. He charged the defendants were negligent in not providing proper protection from such accidents.

Mild Rally Tendencies In Stocks, But Selling Keeps List Somewhat Off Balance

EXCHANGE FINAL TONE IRREGULAR

NEW YORK, Sept. 21—(AP)— Mild rallying tendencies appeared in today's brief stock market session, but there was still sufficient selling to keep the list somewhat off balance.

Traders appeared to have recovered partially from their severe war fright of yesterday and nibbling at selected issues was noted. The close was moderately irregular. Transfers approximated 650,000 shares.

Despite the rejection by the Mussolini cabinet of the league of nation's peace proposals in the Italo-Ethiopian controversy, Wall street saw hopes of a compromise and some short covering was based on this thesis. In addition, a few bargain hunters appeared in the boardrooms with the idea of shaving profits on at least a temporary technial rebound.

Commodities that were run up on the prospects of hostilities starting soon were inclined to back up as ideas of a new conflagration were revised. Wheat and corn slipped during most of the day along with cotton. Secondary bonds developed a little better tone and foreign exchanges, generally, were a bit firmer in terms of the dollar.

Shares about unchanged to slightly improved included Montgomery Ward, General Electric, Westinghouse, Western Union, Consolidated Gas, National Dairy, Electric Auto-Lite, Anaconda, Kennecott, Union Pacific, New York Central, Santa Fe and Great Northern. Among losers of about a point each were Air Reduction, Allied Chemical and U. S. Smelting. Such stocks as General Motors, Chrysler, Case, U. S. Steel and Bethlehem moved a shade in either direction.

Offerings from abroad were still a factor in the range of securities prices, but commission houses with foreign connections said that liquidation from these sources appeared to have lessened considerably.

Offerings from abroad were still a factor in the range of securities prices, but commission houses with foreign connections said that liquidation from these sources appeared to have lessened considerably.

In line with this, it was pointed out that the situation now, so far as foreign holdings in the United States are concerned, is much different than in 1914. Then most of the proceeds of sales was shipped back to Euroupe. Funds derived from recent transactions, however, were understood to have been allowed to remain in New York. From this, optimistic brokers deduced that when, as and if, a substantial rebound gets under way, many commitments will be reinstated.

Most market commentators were chary of predicting nearby trends pending clarification of the foreign outlook, but the majority promptly warned against disturbing long pull positions in equities at this time.

While the principal attention of financial circles was centered on Rome and Geneva, continued improvement in domestic trade and industry was not neglected.

NEW YORK BOND REVIEW

NEW YORK, Sept. 21—(AP)—A generally irregular bond market was featured by a modest demand for a number of railroad issues, some of them in the medium and lower price brackets. Foreign loans were irregular with French 7s down sharply.

The U. S. government list continued soft, although Treasury 3¼s of 1934 and 1944 managed to stage a recovery for limited net gains. While they remained under par, Treasury 2⅞s stiffened a trifle for slight gains.

In the foreign group the French 7s were under pressure and gave up more than 2 points. Italian 7s braced up as much as a point. Most others in the foreign group were mixed with small gains and losses about a standoff.

Rail issues which edged ahead fractionally included:

WHEAT LOWER ON CHICAGO MARKET

CHICAGO, Ill., Sept. 21—(AP)— Cautiousness regarding possible surprise developments in Europe over Sunday ruled late dealings in the grain market today, and wheat prices closed at moderate declines.

Sharp attention was given to weakness of foreign markets. A conspicuous feature was selling on the part of previous buyers.

Wheat closed unsettled, ⅝ to 1⅜ cents under yesterday's finish, December 99⅛@99¼c, corn ½ cent of fto ⅜ cent up, December 58¾@⅞c, oats at ¼ cent decline to ½ cent advance, and provisions varying from 5 cents osetback to an equal gain.

In an active but unexcited market, grain prices went downhill early today.

Announcement of Italy's rejection of the league of nations' peace plan for Ethiopia had been heralded long before today's trading began, but evoked no unusual outburst of buying orders. Instead, setbacks of wheat quotations at Liverpool had a dominating bearish effect for the time being, and sellers here outnumbered buyers.

Opening ⅛ to 1⅜ cents a bushel lower, December 99@99½c, the Chicago market then held near to the initial range. Corn started ⅛ to ½ cent off, December 58⅛@58¼c, and afterward sagged further.

An extreme drop of 1⅞ cents in the Chicago heat marwet took place before rallies were witnessed. At this stage, a recovery of nearly a cent a bushel followed. A good deal of comment was heard that the action of Italy was only a beginning of negotiations, and that her stand could be regarded as yet only a preliminary one.

Disappearance of tension among wheat traders was soon apparent, and the speculative pits, although crowded, showed little other signs of extraordinary happenings. Cables reported Liverpool wheat market weakness today as due largely to profit taking on the part of recent buyers.

Word of a pause in overseas demand for wheat acted also as a weight on values here. On the other hand, reports current left scant room for doubt as to seriousness of the foreign political situation. Furthermore, Argentine advices mentioned no substantial relief from drouth.

Corn, oats and rye took their cue mainly from wheat market behavior.

Provisions advanced owing to smallness of offerings.

About mid-session, wheat was ¾ to 1 cent lower compared with yesterday's finish, December 99⅜c, and corn was ⅜ cent off to ⅜ cent up, December 58⅞c.

Corn receipts in Chicago today were 52 cars, a week ago 39, and a year ago 75.

GRAIN NOTES.

CHICAGO, Sept. 21—(AP)—Modern Miller said continued dry and hot weather in the southwestern wheat belt was attracting attention from the grain trade due to the lack of subsoil reserve over a wide area. "Seeding of the new winter wheat crop has made rapid progress," it said, "due to the dry weather, but rains are now needed in order to assure the crop having a good start. There is no scarcity of surface moisture in the so-called soft wheat states."

John H. Pitt of Thomson & McKinnon observed: "The greatest influence on wheat prices at present is the indication world supplies this year will be reduced to a minimum. This suggests normal crops must be raised in all countries next season or there will be a world shortage. We believe wheat should be purchased on all dips."

Foxx Lacks Only Single Point Of Leading His Loop In Batting.

NEW YORK, Sept. 21—(AP)— The rise of one important big league figure and the fall of another provided the hitting high spots of the major leagues during the semi-final week of the 1935 season.

Jimmie Foxx of the Athletics, bidding for the American league crown, came close to his objective as he continued his brilliant spurt for another 10-point gain in the stretch which started a week ago. Floyd (Arky) Vaughan, whose aim has been to lead the National league with a .400 mark or better, ran into a serious slump that seemed to have wiped out his chances.

Vaughan In Nose Dive.

Vaughan, close to .400 all season, hit safely only three times in 19 official trips to the plate and dropped 10 points to .387. Vaughan's lead was unchallenged, as his nearest rival, Joe Medwick of St. Louis, dropped six points to .357 and was in danger of losing his place to Chicago's Gabby Hartnett.

Foxx hit a .500 clip through the week, with 15 blows in 30 times up, and moved from fifth place among the American league leaders to second, one point behind Joe Vosmik of Cleveland.

The first 10 regulars in each major league follow:

New Negro Phenom On Fistic Horizon

CHICAGO, Sept. 21—(INS)— Another Detroit negro loomed on the heavyweight prizefight horizon today, in pursuit of his fellow townsman's fame and fortune.

He is Lorenzo Pack, who followed Joe Louis through the ranks of the Golden Glovers into professionalism, and last night scored his sixth straight victory with an eight-round technical knockout of Art Sykes, Elmira, N. Y.

A rough-and-tumble affair, both fighters fell out of the ring in the fourth round as they lost their balance while locked in a clinch. Sykes tumbled through the ropes again in the seventh and was so plainly out on his feet at the start of the eighth that Referee Tommy Gilmore stopped the bout.

Clinton Bridges, another graduate of the Golden Gloves tournament, met with less fortune. He was kayoed in 49 seconds by Mickey Dugan of Cleveland in the semi-windup.

Grins At Baer Camp.

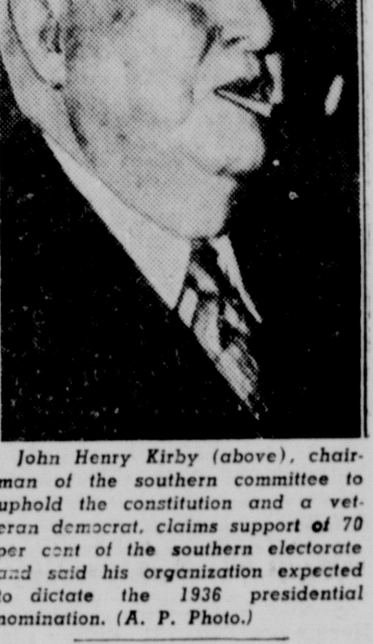

SPECULATOR, N. Y., Sept. 21—(AP)—There were big grins in and around the Max Baer camp today, because Max and his manager believe that at last Joe Louis, the sable sphinx, has cracked.

Word reached here that John Roxborough, manager of Louis, was asking the New York state athletic commission to bar "artificial stimulants" from the corners of both fighters.

"Artificial stimulants," scoffed Ancil Hoffman, manager of the former champion, "that probably means spirits of ammonia, which all handlers carry into a corner for emergency. I wouldn't be without it, no matter what any commission ruled. Joe Louis hadn't better be without it, either. He'll need it when they drag him away about the fifth round.

"Only once did I ever carry anything besides ammonia into a corner, and that was the night Baer knocked out Primo Carnera. I had a small bottle of sherry wine. Baer wouldn't touch it and I drank it during the celebration in his dressing room after the fight."

Farmers Plead Guilty To Halting Farm Sale

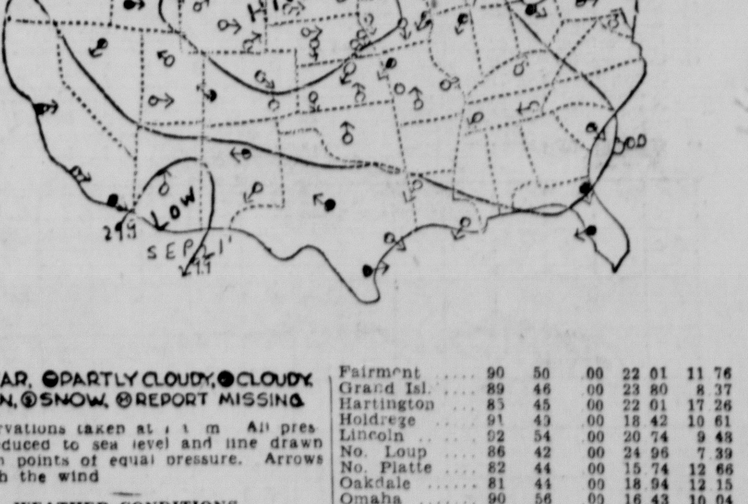

Fourteen Missourians To Tells Story Before Sentences Passed

ST. JOSEPH, Mo., Sept. 21—(AP)—Fourteen farmers today pleaded guilty in Federal court here to charges of contempt of court and interference with federal officers in halting a farm foreclosure sale at Plattsburg, Mo., August 15. The pleas came after the government had virtually completed its case on the contempt charges.

All of the defendants were sworn as witnesses to tell their story before Judge Albert L. Reeves should pass sentences.

Before court opened, most of the defendants went to the office of U. S. Marshal Henry L. Dillingham and apologized for their action in preventing him from holding the sale.

War Within Three Weeks Is Predicted

Europe's Diplomats Foresee Hostilities Between Sept. 29-Oct. 15

SITUATION IS GRAVE

Peace Or War Depends Upon What Mussolini Does in Near Future

LONDON, Sept. 21—(AP)—The consensus of Europe's diplomats is that, barring the surrender of Mussolini to League of Nations pressure, the Italo-Ethiopian war will break out between September 29 and October 15.

The gravest of the ensuing questions, these troubled diplomats in Rome, Paris, Geneva and London said today, was whether hostilities could be localized or whether the African spark would ignite another world conflagration.

Mussolini's refusal to compromise, combined with the approaching end of the rainy season in Ethiopia, has converted Europe almost overnight from speculation on the likelihood of a colonial war to discussion of what nations may be involved.

The survival or collapse of the cumbersome post-war machinery of peace depends, in the view of British circles, on what Mussolini does in the next few critical weeks—or even hours.

Peace Chances Slight.

Most official and diplomatic spokesmen in Europe's capitals agree that there is only the slenderest chance that Il Duce will turn back once his black shirts have crossed the Ethiopian frontier—even if they penetrate only far enough to capture Aduwa, 25 miles inward.

Such an act of aggression, it is generally believed, would compel the league to swing into action with the whole creaky and untested machinery of sanctions to punish the unprovoked aggression against one of its members.

Immediately these questions would arise:

1. Would the league fail in its attempt to bring the hostilities to a swift end?
2. Would Italy withdraw from the league?
3. If Italy did withdraw, would the league's prestige survive such a blow?
4. How far would Great Britain go in advocating sanctions to restrain Italy?
5. How far would France and other nations follow the British lead?
6. What would Britain do if France failed to fall in step for action to punish Italy?
7. Would Italy threaten British interests in the Mediterranean and Africa in reply to sanctions and what is Britain prepared to do acting alone to protect those interests?
8. Would the Italian and the British Armadas, be launched at each other's throats by an incident such as the sinking of the Maine?
9. What effect would the sanctions have on Italy?
10. What would Germany do in the event of an Italo-British war?

Speculate on First Attack.

Military circles in Rome asserted that Italy's opening move in Ethiopia would be to attack Aduwa—perhaps without a declaration of war. Many high army officers doubt, however, that there will be a major battle there, having seen indications that the Ethiopians recognize the weakness of this far outpost.

They also recognize the great desire of the Italians to capture it to wipe out the humiliation of the defeat of 1896 and may therefore surrender this unimportant post without a struggle.

With Aduwa captured, Mussolini must decide whether to order his 250,000 troops massed in east Africa onward to Addis Ababa or to withdraw and draw up terms for peace. Scarcely anyone of official authority doubts that Mussolini will proceed.

Granting that, few strategists agree on how long the war will last.

The strength of the virtually unprepared and unarmed Ethiopian cohorts is an unknown factor. Some military experts believed the Roman legians, harassed by the combined forces of nature and the guerrilla attacks of the wild Ethiopians, will have a perilous time advancing to the plateau, but are bound to triumph ultimately.

Red Cross Executive Has Praise For State

Nebraska was praised by J. M. Power, assistant manager of the midwest branch of the American Red Cross, who stopped in Lincoln Friday afternoon to meet with the executive committee of the Lincoln chapter.

"The state made a highly commendable record when it raised $70,000 by personal subscription for the flood destitute when its quota was only $48,000," Mr. Power said.

The Red Cross executive reported that the A. R. C. has spent $175,000 in the Republican valley with $105,000 coming from the national Red Cross treasury. Power added that aid of FERA labor enabled the Red Cross to spend much less money than would have otherwise been necessary.

Prosperity Seen By McKelvie If Business Allowed Initiative

Given an opportunity for individual initiative on the part of the business man and the worker, an era of prosperous economic conditions was forecast for the not distant future by S. R. McKelvie, the principal speaker Friday night at the Ben Franklin club dinner at the Cornhusker hotel. More than fifty attended.

American always has 2 million or more unemployed, the former governor declared, "but they are idle, not from necessity but from choice." That many can always be expected among the ranks of the unemployed, he added.

Mr. McKelvie reviewed America's development during the past century, showing that there has always been marked progress, due to the initiative of business and tradesmen. Changed conditions have always been met successfully, and they will be now.

George Cooper, a former secretary of the club, was a guest, and there was a delegation of Omaha printers present.

Mitchell Irrigation District Officers Not Decided On What To Do

SCOTTSBLUFF, Neb., Sept. 21—(AP)—Whether the Mitchell irrigation district will endeavor to carry its case to the United States Supreme court in protection of its alleged prior water rights remains undetermined. Representatives of the district reserved comment until they could study the decision of the Nebraska Supreme court in favor of the state more fully.

The major issue still revolves about the prior water rights claimed by the Farmers irrigation district, intervener in the case. While the Mitchell district officers admits the Farmers district right of Sept. 16, 1887, is prior to theirs of June 10, 1890, they contend the 1887 right covers only a small portion of the acreage now served by the Farmers district.

Hearings on the motion to quash the contempt proceedings brought against the Mitchell district directors were scheduled in District court at Gering Saturday.

C. G. Perry ,assistant to the Nebraska attorney general, said last night at Bridgeport the state would press the contempt action, with the Supreme court decision having no effect either way on the state's intentions.

Deplore Cooper Death

Officials of the Nebraska State Teachers association said the sudden death of Dr. William John Cooper of California, former United States commissioner of education, was a "shock to his friends and acquaintances in educational circles in Nebraska.' Dr. Cooper, who died Thursday at Kearney, Neb., called frequently on Nebraskans for committee work and counsel in the work of the bureau, the state teachers association oficials said.

Amy Sherwin Dead

BROMLEY, Kent, Eng., Sept. 21—(AP)—Amy Sherwin, noted operatic soprano, died here today. She was 81 years of age.

The singer, who once filled the concert halls of America with her golden voice and earned as much as 3,000 pounds sterling yearly, died almost forgotten, lonely—and penniless.

Living in fine style had depleted her resources and charges of the nursing home where she died had been paid by charity.

STRANGE AS IT SEEMS— BY JOHN HIX

Strange as it seems, the greatest earthquake in United States history—in fact the only first degree earthquake this nation ever had—was a terrific shake more than a century ago that centered around the frontier town of New Madrid, Missouri. This quake does not occupy much of a place in any list of disasters because it affected a then sparsely populated area. However, experts agree that any city on the spot would have been utterly destroyed.

The quake occurred in late 1811 and early 1812, beginning in the middle of December and shaking continuously until the middle of February. Shocks were felt over an area of 12,000 square miles. It was one of the very few known cases where an area quaked continuously for months.

The water in the Mississippi river rose six to eight feet in places, then dropped below its former level. In many sections, the entire course of the river was changed. In spite of the fact that the earthquake took place in midwinter, the weather was oppressively hot at the time.

California, well known for its minor temblors, has never had a quake that approached this one in severity. The quake of 1933 in Long Beach, though it wrought much damage, was not a major shock, according to the United States Coast and Geodetic Survey.

The Nebraska liquor commission Saturday approved beer licenses granted by the Lincoln city council to Ed Barney and Dave Strackbein, 208 South Ninth street.

The beer license of Jessie Crampton, Wauneta cafe proprietress, was ordered cancelled.

Two Lancaster county beer hearings were scheduled for next Friday, on appeal from refusal of the county board to approve license applications. The appellants are A. H. Remaly and Walt Stevens. The appeal of Ted Kurtenbach from refusal to the Platte Center village board to grant him a beer license will also be heard next Friday.

SINISTER RUMORS IN CAULIFLOWER ALLEY

Tale Goes Rounds of Baer Scheming Foul His Foe

BY DAVIS J. WALSH.

NEW YORK, Sept. 21—(INS)—Over and above the unlovely symphony of a great city lifting itself to the tempo of its greatest prize fight ran the thread of an obligato this morning—a thin, penetrating, small but not still voice that said that there might be a repetition of the Dempsey-Sharkey fair-or-foul situation when Max Baer and Joe Louis meet before 90,000 people on Tuesday night.

Maxie Plots Make It Rough.

Baer, it was said, wants to play rough. It also was pointed out that anything is possible here owing to the eccentricities of the local low-punch rule, drafted by a committee of comic strip artists following a bad night at Sweeney's.

The rule distinctly states that a man, when hit low, wins the round on a foul, provided the indignity is so trivial that he is able to arise and proceed with the combat.

If, on the other hand, the foul is so flagrant as to permanently disable the victim, he is not fouled at all, but, instead, may consider himself knocked out.

On thinking that one over, I'm inclined to change my mind. It wasn't comic strip artists. It must have been the League of Nations at Geneva.

Anyhow, the alarmists, always in circulation before a big fight muttering bitterly about "bags" and the "works," are operating again.

They were operating, as a matter of fact, two days ago, at which time I paid them no especial heed. I am paying them not too much now, but apparently others are.

Flurry of Baer Sentiment.

There was a surprising amount of Baer sentiment on the street today—surprising in view of the gentleman's extraordinary behavior when last he performed in public, at which time he spent 15 rounds simpering brutally at James J. Braddock.

The story even seemed to obtain some credence down at Pompton Lakes, where there have been legends about "private workouts" in which Trainer Jack Blackburn is understood to have passed out some quiet tips on the business of being unrefined and not too genteel.

Blackburn doubtless knows something of what can be done, for he is a carry-over from an age where the brass knuckle was considered de rigeur and the average man was so tough that he brushed his teeth with a nail file.

However, as I say, no big fight is complete without its quota of inuendoes, real and fancied. In fact, generally speaking, it isn't even big without them.

Hotels Selling Out.

Otherwise, all is tranquil, except that many hotels were selling themselves out and the fight was rapidly doing so. It had more than $800,000 in the till when they closed the windows last night and, with a fair shake in the weather over the week-end, it can't miss a million. The promoters indeed, feel reasonably certain that they'll play to a capacity of 91,650 at the Yankee Stadium, with a record non-championship gate of $1,200,000.

The Baer sentiment, incidentally, has not been monetary. Sam Boston and some of the other books claim that they are holding large commissions, but, so far, they haven't done business for the change out of a quarter. They are "laying" 8 to 5 or "taking" 2 to 1, meaning that if you want Baer, they'll give you 8 to 5, but if you want Louis, they'll give the one and you'll give the two.

High Rollers Absent.

There seems to be none of that five to twenty thousand business the high-rollers used to play around with, unless, as it claimed, everybody is waiting for a break on the odds.

Louis will go for his final airing at Pompton Lakes today and Baer probably the same at Speculator. Both will come into town before noon on the day of the fight for the weighing in, where, incidentally, the Louis people claim they will take steps to prevent the alleged administration of strychnine to Baer between rounds. If that was strychnine the last time, maybe they ought to try arsenic.

CORUM'S CHATTER

BY BILL CORUM.

NEW YORK, Sept. 21—(INS)—Buried, as I am, beneath an avalanche of correspondence that razzes, roasts, mocks and laughs right out loud at me because of my position on next Tuesday night's Baer-Louis prize fight, may I raise a plaintive voice to suggest that we change the subject.

After all, nothing that my aroused correspondents or I can write from now on will have much bearing on what will take place under Promoter Mike Jacobs' white flood-lights when the big bell goes.

It will be up to Max Baer and Joe Louis to write the real story then. And whatever that ultimate story may be, I am sure that all of us will be sportsmen enough to accept it as fair and final.

If this column is wrong in its conviction that the brown boy from the Alabama cane-brakes is a better fist fighter than Max Baer ever was, or ever will be—well, it won't be the first time this column has been so very, very wrong, and admitted it.

On the other hand, if Joe Louis is as good a ringman as I believe him to be, and proves it—well, then, even a so-called expert should be right occasionally, and what of it?

TO THOSE who insist on pointing out to me what I once thought Baer a terrific fighting man, and picked him against Braddock, Carnera, Levinsky and others, permit me to make one reasonable pertinent point in rebuttal—I might have picked Maxie against Mussolini's standing army, but I have never yet picked him against Joe Louis. And unless my press ticket has been printed in error, it's Joe Louis that's fighting Tuesday evening.

And if the dark angel doesn't prove again that evening that he is one of those fighters that are tossed up by chance about once in a decade, Corum won't be the only sports scribbler who'll have a few words to eat. If you think so, check the files on the days after the Louis-Carnera and Louis-Levinsky fights.

Also, I am just a wee bit surprised to note that many of those who say that odds of better than 7 to 5 or 8 to 5 on Louis are ridiculous and laughable, are the same folks who made Baer 8 to 1 and 10 to 1 over Jim Braddock.

But they say we must throw that fight out. Well, they can throw it out. I'm going to keep it in until at least next Wednesday morning.

THE fight I really set out to discuss today is that torrid tussle in the National league between the sky-rocket Chicago Cubs and the embattled world's champion Cardinals.

All the odds must ride with the Cubs in the closing days of one of those pennant races that make men old before their time, but it seems to me that, win or lose, Frisch and his Gas House Gang are living up to their advance billing. They've never yet been licked until the numbers were hung, and it looks very much as if they are not going to be licked this time until the schedule makers throttle 'em down.

With their pitching corps practically reduced to the two durable and remarkable Deans, with Terry Moore, possibly the fastest man on the Cards or any other team, out for the season; with Martin crippled, Frisch's aging muscles tied in knots, Medwick in his first real slump of the year and Collins breaking his back to reach fences that seem suddenly to have pulled back out of his range, the Red Shirts fight on.

BUCCO CLUB ON HOT SPOT NOW

Pirates' Stand Against Cubs, Cards Highly Important

The Pittsburgh Pirates, who aren't likely to finish higher than fourth in the National league this season, today found themselves in the midst of the torrid pennant battle between Chicago's flying Cubs and the rough and tumble St. Louis Cardinals, with a possibility that their actions may decide the scrap.

The Bucs play a pair of games at Chicago today and tomorrow, while the Cards play three contests with the Reds. Then Pittsburgh moves on to St. Louis for a pair while the Cubs are idle, and after that the pennant rivals meet in a five-game hand to hand conflict.

After a day of complete idleness for all major league clubs yesterday, the standing of the Cubs and Cards and the New York Giants, who haven't been completely from the race yet, was as follows:

Where They Stand Today.

	W	L	Pct	Behind	To Play
Cubs	95	52	.646	...	7
Cards	91	53	.632	2½	10
Giants	84	56	.600	7½	14

If the Cards should go straight through their five games against Cincinnati and Pittsburgh and the Bucs should knock off the Cubs a couple of times to end Chicago's 16-game winning streak, the final series would open with the standing this way:

	W	L	Pct
Cards	96	53	.644
Cubs	95	54	.633

That would mean Chicago would have to win four out of five to capture the flag outright, while anything better than a 2-3 loss would win for St. Louis. If Pittsburgh should lose two to Chicago and win two from St. Louis, however, even though the Cards trim Cincinnati's fifth-place aspirants, the situation would be far different. The Cubs would thus gain a three-game lead, needing only one victory to tie and two to win the flag.

Giants Have Flimsy Chance.

Further complicating the situation, by trimming both leaders, Pittsburgh could give the Giants a bare chance to come through. New York plays seven games against the Braves, five against Brooklyn and two against the Phillies and has only the slimmest kind of a chance to cop the flag without winning them all.

Compared to that situation, the American league pennant chase is a cut and dried affair. The Tigers have been regarded as "in" for some time and they may possibly clinch the flag today. The current standing shows Detroit leading by 7½ games with nine to go for each club.

Braves Deep In Cellar.

The Braves, certain to finish last in the senior circuit, have a chance to equal or surpass two modern National league records. They have lost 107 games already and have 13 to play. The records are the Phillies' 1928 marks of 109 losses and a final average of .283. The Cleveland Nationals of 1889 lost 134 games and won 20 for a .130 mark that has never been threatened.

Only half a dozen pitchers have won 20 games so far this season and only Dizzy Dean, with 27 triumphs, has a chance to reach the 30 mark, but there are several of them shooting for the twentieth victory before the season closes. Bill Lee, Lon Warneke, Paul Dean, Lefty Grove and Hal Schumacher have won 19 each and schoolboy Rowe and Cy Blanton 18 apiece. Paul Derringer, by winning No. 20 Thursday, became the first Cincinnati pitcher to reach that mark since Pete Donohue did it in 1926.

Tecumseh Repeats Defeat Of Beatrice

TECUMSEH, Neb., Sept. 21—Tecumseh high celebrated today its second consecutive victory over Beatrice high. Coach Dean Higgins' Tecumseh high eleven dedicated the new playing field here yesterday with a 6-0 win over Beatrice.

A blocked punt in the second quarter upset the Gage county eleven. Dunlap, Tecumseh's husky tackle, broke through to block a Beatrice punt and give his team possession of the ball 3 yards from the goal line. Quarterback Gardner carried it across on the first play.

The game was played in terrific heat and there was plenty of early season fumbling. Beatrice and Tecumseh each carried the ball within scoring distance in the last half, but couldn't manufacture a touchdown punch.

Cozad Wallops Brady.

COZAD, Neb., Sept. 21—Cozad smothered Brady, 33-0, yesterday, two of the touchdowns being scored following long runs. Herbert Bullock chased a punt 75 yards for one touchdown and Stan Anderson returned a kickoff 65 yards to another counter.

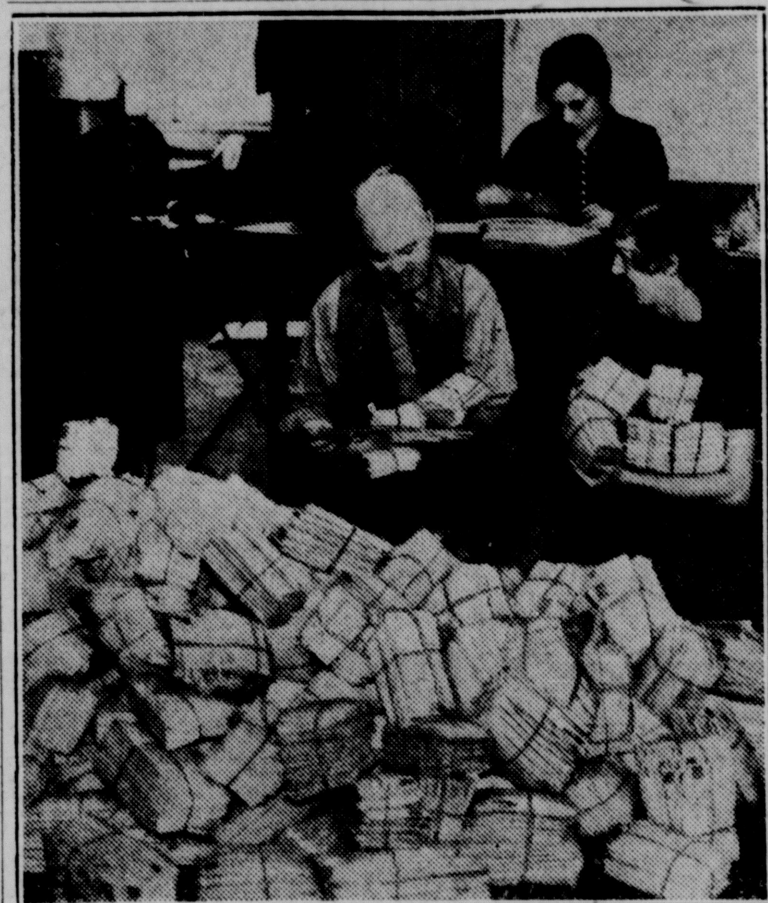

Mat Card Complete For Show At Four-H

The card for the Infantry Unit's wrestling show at the 4-H arena next Tuesday night was completed with a Saturday announcement by Promoter Cliff Dier. Steve Savage and Andy Moen are to meet in the main tussle.

The semi-final scrap will pit Farmer Tobin, the lanky bonebender with the long beard, against Rex Smith, a newcomer, in a 30-minute bout, two falls out of three. The opening preliminary sends Jack Manel, rough Portuguese from Portland, against Jack Vincent, Arkansas hill-billy, in a 20-minute, one-fall bout.

TIGERS' TICKET OFFICE SWAMPED.

It won't be long before the "S. R. O." sign will be hung out at Navin Field in Detroit. Within 24 hours after plans for the ticket sale for the world series were announced, 85,000 applications for seats were received. Two days later, the total had surpassed 300,000. Charles Martin, in charge of the ticket sale, is shown with several assistants as they started to sort the letters. (Associated Press Photo.)

Crete High Ahead On Touchdown Run

CRETE, Neb., Sept. 21—A freak touchdown by Warren Douglas, holdover end from last season's powerful Crete high football team, enabled the Cardinals to hand Pawnee City the short end of a 6-0 count in the season's opener at Simon Field Friday night.

It was midway in the third quarter when Crete won the game. Vasek punted for Pawnee, Kermit Avery downing the ball on the Crete 42-yard line, but before Referee Max Roper tooted his whistle, Kermit stood upright, leaving the ball unpossessed. Douglas snatched the leather and raced 58 yards to a touchdown through the entire Pawnee City eleven. For a time it appeared he was trapped on the 15-yard line, but Warren wriggled his hips and squirmed away from the tacklers.

Crete lacked the powerhouse of former years, depending chiefly upon little Johnny Yant, halfback, for the offensive thrusts. The line was over-anxious, costing Crete nearly 100 yards in offside penalties. Each team made four first downs and, all in all, it was an even game except for the costly mistake by Avery and Douglas' run.

HASTINGS WINS CLOSE ONE.

HASTINGS, Sept. 21—A pass from Trupp to Weller, good for five yards and a touchdown, gave Hastings high school an opening victory here Friday night as the Tigers upset Smith Center, Kas., in a close game, 6 to 0. The touchdown pass ended a drive from midfield.

Smith Center, after a bad first half was strong in the final period and the timer's gun, which halted the visitors on the three-yard line, ended the game.

Almost every race meeting in South Dakota since pari-mutuel betting was legalized there in 1933 is reported to have lost money or barely made expenses, and therefore the system may be abandoned next year.

Goodman Too Good For Amateur King

CHICAGO, Sept. 21—(INS)—William Lawson Little, the superman of amateur golf, knew the taste of defeat today.

Little, who piled up a string of 31 victories in winning the British and U. S. national amateur titles for two straight years, played an exhibition match yesterday at Kenilworth City club with Johnny Goodman, whom he defeated in the semi-final round of the recent national tourney.

Somewhat shaky off the tees and out of bounds on two holes, Little scored a 38-38 for a 76, four strokes more than Goodman's 36-36—72.

'B' TEAM WINS FROM KEARNEY

Nubbins Drive To Goal And Pull Victory Out Of Fire.

KEARNEY, Neb., Sept. 21—The University of Nebraska "B" football team opened its season with a 7-6 victory over Kearney Teachers college here last night.

Ralph Eldridge drove off tackle 12 yards for the Nebraska touchdown in the third quarter and then kicked the extra point for the winning margin. The Nubbins drove 38 yards on their touchdown march, Eldridge, Howell and Fischer lugging the ball.

Kearney scored in the first period when Billeter, center, picked up a short Nebraska punt and ran eight yards across the final chalk mark.

On "Big Six" Front.

KANSAS STATE.

A scrimmage session today, the last item of hard labor before the Duquesne game a week hence, was promised the Kansas State gridsters by Coach Wes Fry. Drill next week will be of a "polishing" nature, Fry said.

Meanwhile, Frank Myers, in charge of ticket sales, announced he had less than 50 season reserved seats remaining after the heaviest advanse sale in Kansas State's history.

OKLAHOMA.

Jap Haskell's freshman crew got the jump on Captain Lawrence (Biff) Jones' regulars at the start of a heavy scrimmage Friday and kept three varsity squads on the defensive the remainder of the afternoon.

The frosh completed a forward pass and two laterals on the opening play for a 20-yard gain and spent the rest of the afternoon making life miserable for varsity candidates.

KANSAS U.

The Kansas Jayhawkers went through a light Friday afternoon workout, cheered by the announcement that Fred Harris, star kicker, had satisfied scholastic requirements for his reinstatement, after having been placed on probation.

IOWA STATE.

Coach George Veenker pushed the Iowa State squad through two heavy workouts Friday in an attempt to make up time lost during the recent hot weather. New formations were rehearsed, with pass plays drawing heavy scrimmage today, climaxing two weeks of practice.

MISSOURI.

Bidders for berths in Missouri's starting lineup get their best chance of the preseason period today as Don Faurot makes his first attempt to muster full strength against the Tiger frosh.

A blazing sun Friday held the Tigers to a light drill, but Faurot planned a full session of scrimmage today in an attempt to select a first team from the six squads he has working.

Jim Lawlor, 180-pound sophomore back who has been pressing toward a regular assignment, was on the shelf today with a sprained ankle. The injury will keep him idle for a week or 10 days, and out of the opening game with William Jewell.

DESHLER DRUBS FAIRBURY.

DESHLER, Neb., Sept. 21—Deshler won from Fairbury, 7-2, in the final game of the home season.

BAER CRITICS POURING IT ON

But Max Ignores Blasts And Still Is Confident Of Victory.

SPECULATOR, N. Y., Sept. 21—(INS)—The credit due to a man of greatness will be Max Baer's if he succeeds in winning over Joe Louis at Yankee Stadium on Tuesday night.

Few men in ring history have been so pelted by adverse criticism as the former heavyweight champion in recent weeks of training here. Sport experts from far and wide who viewed Max in his preparatory moves have voiced their disapproval of his ability, many predicting that Louis will be witnessed in the role of executioner.

What has Baer's mental reaction been to all this? Perhaps it is a question. At any rate, it is safe to say that Baer, being human, has not been entirely able to disregard everything said of him.

In every walk of life men need encouragement. Baer has received little of it for this impending meeting with the brown bomber. Max has trained religiously, has succeeded in attaining excellent condition, and because, on several recent occasions he has displayed unimpressive glove performances, he has received harsh criticism.

Max Still Confident.

It is surprising, in view of the circumstances, just how well he has retained a standing position. The end of the training period here finds him, as those close to him know, with full confidence in his ability to turn back Louis.

"Words will not decide this fight," one of his close handlers said this morning. "Max knows that. He has been in the ring long enough to understand that the final decision will be made when the two principals square off. For, in the ring, anything can happen."

In the meantime, Baer goes about his final preparatory stunts for Louis in the same manner as at any time during the long grind. If he is greatly affected, then it certainly is not noticeable.

Rebuff for Chorus Girl.

NEW YORK, Sept. 21—(INS)—Max Baer in the first round—by a knockout!

This is not a prediction as to what will take place when Max faces Joe Louis in the ring next Tuesday, but merely today's status in the legal battle by which Miss Shirley La Belle, chorus girl, hopes to nick the former champion for $50,000 in a Supreme court suit alleging assault.

Miss La Belle's application for an order for the arrest of Baer, which she sought on the ground that Baer might not be in New York when the case is tried, was denied yesterday.

Stiner's Aggies Face Fire In First Game

CORVALLIS, Ore., Sept. 21—(INS)—Oregon State college, the first Pacific Coast conference member to pry off the 1935 football lid, will unlimber here this afternoon against Linfield college.

Campis Cleaners climbed to an even footing with Arcade in class A of the city softball tournament Friday night at Muny Field when the Cleaners upset the Garagement, 3-1, after a hectic battle. The two teams will meet Monday night for the city championship.

Al Spaedt, hurling for the Cleaners, set down 13 Arcades on strikes while allowing only two hits. John Hergenrader hit a home run in the last of the first with Heilman and Lutz on base to give the Campus gang the margin of victory. Virgil Yelkin and Dawdy Hawkins of the Arcades were banished by Umps Van Horn after a fifth-inning fisticuffs aimed in the general direction of the arbiter.

Freadrichs Reds moved into the semi-finals of class B by beating System Stores, 9-5, while the All-Stars, competing in the Midwest tourney at Omaha, took time out to shellack the Blue Ribbon gang by 23-2.

Two final games in the playground tournament will be run off as part of Saturday's abbreviated schedule which will include only three games. American Legion and Peter Pan play for the Midget championship, while Peter Pan and Hayward are due to tangle in the Giant finals, leaving only the Varsity group still going in the playground compet. The third game is an exhibition between General Tires of Lincoln and the Diller Girls.

Form Sheet Favors Tigers As Winners Fall Classic

BY PAT ROBINSON.

NEW YORK, Sept. 21—(INS)—If the world series were to start today, most bookmakers probably would quote the Tigers at 6 to 5 against the Cubs and at least 8 to 5 against the Cardinals. Should the Cubs knock off the Cardinals in the final series of the season, they probably would go into the classic at no worse than even money and might even be a slight favorite.

Hot and Boiling Over.

The Cubs have been riding high, wide and handsome—a veritable team of destiny. They've been getting the breaks. Lady Luck has been with them, but it must be admitted they have given Lady Luck some help. In a word, they're a hot team.

Such a team was the Braves of 1914, which started in last place in mid-season, slammed their way through to a pennant behind the masterly pitching of Rudolph, Tyler and James and then astounded the baseball world by taking four straight from Connie Mack's supposedly invincible Athletics.

That showed what a hot team, geared to a frenzy and carried along by their own terrific momentum, could do against a normally superior combination.

Anything Can Happen.

Will history repeat? In asking the question, I don't want to intimate that there is any such difference between Tigers and Cubs or Cardinals as existed between the Athletics and Braves of 1914. I merely wish to stress the point that anything can happen and often does in a world series.

In other words, I would not die of shock, for instance, if the Cubs were to take four straight from the Tigers, but I certainly should be surprised.

Ball players agree pitching is 80 per cent of the game. In a short series, it's about 95 per cent. One great pitcher is sometimes enough to win a world series single-handed, as Christy Mathewson did when he shut out the Athletics three times in one fall classic.

Cardinal Pitchers Weary.

Should the Cardinals stagger into the pennant, they will carry into the big series a tired, worn and jaded pitching staff. They will not be half a strong in the box as they were last year, when they had their hands full beating a Tiger team inferior to this year's array.

Rested, ready and rarin' to go, Dizzy Dean is more than a match for any team, but a tired and jaded Dizzy is just another lad with a glove. Even his rubber arm can stand just so much wear and tear and it is worthy of note he and Brother Paul have been in all or part of 17 of the last 20 Cardinal games.

The Cardinals would have to depend on them, for Bill Hallahan, a marvelous money pitcher when right, has been away off form and Collins, Walker, Haines and Heusser don't figure to cause the Tigers any loss of sleep worrying about them.

Cubs' Pitchers All Set.

Should the Cubs win the pennant, they will be in great shape for the Tigers. Their pitchers have had plenty of work, but none of them has been overworked. They will be at their peak and ready to give their best. The question is, will that best be good enough?

The Cubs probably will rely on Warneke, Lee, Root and French, with Carleton and Henshaw in reserve. Warneke was in one losing world series. He is a cagey, spot pitcher with plenty of stuff and the knowledge of what to do with it. He'll be no pushover. Lee is new to world series play, but he is fast and if not too nervous should give a fine account of himself. The left-handed French is a question mark. He may be very good or he may be terrible. Larry has lots of stuff, but he is one of those hard luck hombres who are all too often on the short end of 1 to 0 and 2 to 1 games.

Root Faces Handicap.

Root should do all right if he can overcome the mental handicap of two previous series. It was he who was pitching when the Athletics suddenly launched that 10-run attack in the inning in which Hack Wilson lost the ball in the sun.

And, if memory serves, it was Charley who was the victim the time Babe Ruth called his shot and hit the next pitch into the bleachers.

Carleton and Henshaw could handle a game capably on their own account, but I believe they will see only relief duty. At that, I have an idea the left-handed Henshaw will be tougher for the Tigers than any other pitcher on the Cub staff.

Against these the Tigers will shoot Rowe, Bridges, Crowder and Auker, all of whom went through the mill last fall. All but the veteran Crowder appeared to have the jitters then, but they'll be calm, cool and collected this time.

Bridges Hurls Mean Bender.

Bridges' great curveball—than which there is none better—should make the Cubs' right-hand hitters moan in nine languages, and Auker's sinker should be more than a little annoying. Crowder may be the softest touch for the Cubs. The old boy is not as fast as he used to be, but he's smart.

Rowe won't have Edna on his mind this time and if he has one of his real good days, he'll be tougher than a Bowery steak.

The Cubs may be hotter than a fan dancer's shimmy, but I think the Tigers have what it takes to cool them off.

McCarthy On Air As Fight Spieler

NEW YORK, Sept. 21—(AP)—Clem McCarthy, whose name in radio has been more closely associated with turf experting than any one other subject, is to do the blow-by-blow wordage in the combined WEAF-NBC broadcast of the Baer-Louis fight next Tuesday night. In the past, Graham McNamee has been called upon for most of the fight broadcasting. With McCarthy, will be Edwin C. Hill as between-the-rounds speaker.

LINCOLN HI SHOWS ITS SCORING PUNCH

The A and B lineups at Lincoln high showed plenty of gridiron power Friday afternoon when they combined to hand the C eleven a 33-0 walloping in a regulation game. All five touchdowns were recorded on plays which covered comparatively long yardage.

Hermie Rohrig sailed 40 yards for one score and skirted end for 29 yards to chalk up another touchdown. Cather rounded end for 15 yards to count, while Binger and Rood each tallied on 20-yard passes.

Wesleyan Gridsters Battling For Places

The battle for positions on the Nebraska Wesleyan university football team is on full swing with the top 25 slated to make the trip to Greeley, Colo., for the clash with the Colorado State Teachers next week. The Pedagogues were co-champions of the Rocky Mountain conference last fall.

Reports emanating from Greeley which reached the camp of the Plainsmen brought a ray of cheer to Coach George Farley. Walter Mast, ace halfback of the Teachers, is out for the season, an illness turning into a case of lockjaw which forced Mast to relinquish his spot in the Teachers' backfield.

Friday, Farley had his charges going through a strenuous workout, windiing up with a short scrimmage. Two freshmen have won their way into the A lineup at present, Henry Menke of Beatrice working at guard and Gordon Axford of Columbus nudging big Dale Larson out of his tackle station. The Friday lineup listed Ron and Rod Shuman, ends; Axford and Ptacek, tackles; Menke and Wright, guards; J. Brasch, center; Hawkins, quarterback; Seyler, Critchfield and Otto, halfbacks, and Bailey, fullback.

Jackson Pours It On Plainsmen Reserves

The Jackson high school gridiron gang Friday tasted its first actual competition when Coach Ralph Beechner sent his Crimson proteges through a scrimmage with the Nebraska Wesleyan reserves, the workout being in the form of a regulation game. Jackson came out on the long end of a 27-0 score.

Bus Knight, Harry Pitcaithley and Frank Harrington accounted for the four Jackson touchdowns, Pit chalking up a pair of markers.
